After a severe fight the Moros were beaten off, it is believed with heavy loss, but the number of their casualties has not been ascertained.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

Lowell Opera House

If you are at all interested in animals that have their own "call of the wild," and if you are a lover of nature, don't miss the Rainey pictures at the Opera House this week. They are distinct novelties and they possess, as has been very truly said, a wonderful educational value.

One of the most extraordinary pictures ever shown on canvas is that of the dead giraffe hyena dragging the trap that holds him captive. To the East African the striped hyena looms up as the tomb-stone of his fathers and a dead hyena looks down to the native.

The natives will not eat the hyena because it lives on human beings and the hyena had dragged his trap several feet when discovered by some of the natives. One could discern the breath of the animal and though wild and ferocious he looked back at the trap with a look of agonizing power in his hateful, snarling face. Pretty soon he realized that something strange surrounded him and then he indulged in vicious breaks for freedom. The trap, however, was sure of its prisoner and its relentless jaws closed with bulging tenacity to the death emblem of the African, the striped hyena.

Paul J. Rainey's African hunt pictures should not be missed by man, woman or child in Lowell. Animals of British East Africa are shown in their native haunts and all of the pictures are intensely interesting.

The man who tells you all about the pictures is Dr. Louis Frele, and he tells the story, not as a lecturer, but as any good story-teller would tell it. Go to the Opera House and see the gazelle, the eland, the oryx, the kudu, the cheetah, the rhinoceros and other wild animals, some of which are almost unheard of in this western world. The Opera House was filled last night and the audience was a large and distinctly representative one.

Views of the celebrated Tarleton farm were shown. Mr. Tarleton is a hunter who catches wild animals for zoological gardens. He has three breeds which are rapidly becoming extinct, among them the eland, red bucks, bush bucks and kongoni were shown.

The ostrich farm with the big birds being herded in the kraal was very interesting. The ostrich which was pictured in the picture, it being given by a male member of the family. This wile had all turkey trots and bunny huggs beaten to a frazzle. This same ostrich was shown at a later date, being a native boy. The boy had a hard time keeping the big bird away, which finally had to be lassoed and his head securely bound before he was subdued.

The Mississippi hounds were brought into play in the next picture. It was a genuine leopard or cheetah hunt. The famous dogs, Rock and Red, which had been trained to climb trees and which would fight their weight in wild cats, actually freed a big cheetah and drove him from the topmost branches to the ground, where he was devoured. The cheetah fought in rough-and-tumble fashion, only eventually to be bitten to pieces. Some 40 dogs showed in this scene, but the actual fighting was carried on by a half dozen Mississippi hounds.

After intermission there was shown a view of the donjon, or water hole, a dried up river bed, to which hundreds of different kinds of mammals make their way during the morning hours. Photographer Hemenet, who is official photographer of the expedition, was forced to remain here 72 hours at a stretch in order to get the motion pictures shown. He was ensconced in the branches of a tree and was liable many times to serious injury.

Haboons, impalas and rhinoceroses were first shown there running down to the water holes for their morning drink. Later two rhinoceroses battled royally for precedence at the water hole. About this time there appeared on the sky line a long, mottled neck. It was a reticulated giraffe, one of the more rare varieties, and he was not accompanied by his mate. The giraffe plainly showed the effects of the camera clicking, appearing shy and eventually much disturbed. Having come many miles, however, he agreed to drink, but only after his mate arrived. The smaller animals scampered as the larger ones hove into view. Wart hogs and zebras then had a turn at the spring, and finally an umbrella-cowd. This family consisted of father, mother, half grown daughter and baby daughter.

The final two sections of the entertainment consisted of a rhinoceros hunt, one of the most dangerous of sports, and the trudging of the lion by the hounds. In this latter picture the lightning Mississippi hounds were shown at their best, actually putting the king of beasts to bay.

MADAME SCHUMANN HEINK

Madame Schumann-Heink's appearance everywhere this season have all been great successes and the interest shown in her appearances here on Feb. 7th at the Opera House is of an unusual character. Madame Schumann-Heink's time is taken up for the entire season and she will secure but little rest excepting at the Christmas season which she always spends with her children. Speaking of her children and the holiday season, Mrs. Schumann-Heink says: "There is no money in the world that would keep from my children at that time. What is money to me compared with the pleasure of being with my family? I always make it a point to be with my family. The day tells the truth. She gets so homesick at times for her children that she travels hundreds of miles to be with them a short while. Two years ago when touring America she made one jump of over a thousand miles in order to see her children for a period of but a few hours."

Keith's Theatre

Hardeen was the star attraction at Keith's yesterday, and judging from the difficult feats he performed, there will be no doubt as to his popularity during the remainder of the week. He is an athletic looking young man, not the thin, wiry chap one would expect could squeeze out of a pair of handcuffs. He doesn't slip out of them; he opens them and not only one pair, but seven pairs, not to mention a third leg from which was thrown in for good measure, by the committee of local policemen who undertook the job of harnessing up Hardeen.

Sergeant Carney, of the United States recruiting station, is out to get Hardeen's "goat." He wasn't satisfied with the fraudulent trick which the young man showed what he could do, in the line of freeing himself from a punishment from such as was used during the Civil war, and which was guaranteed to keep the most active man quiet for a considerable length of time. It took Hardeen just three minutes to get out of it. Sergeant Carney, still dissatisfied, has offered to bring around an army restraint cot, from which nobody has ever been able to escape without assistance. Hardeen is going to try it, and is confident that he will succeed.

The most spectacular part of his performance was his escape from a milk can filled with water, and secured with six padlocks. In 25 seconds, Hardeen was out of the can, and he emerged completely dry. The audience that he had not disturbed the padlocks, neither had he spilled or let out the water. The audience was enthusiastic over his wonderful exhibition.

Hardeen's tricks are all done behind a canopy, and the audience can only see him before and after he performs each stunt. Of course, that only makes him all the more mysterious, but it arouses an insatiable curiosity in the public, and also, as long as the actor is concealed while he does his tricks, there will be suspicions. Magicians never hide behind curtains, why can't Hardeen let us watch him at the time he is on the stage?

Officer Sullivan who assisted last evening, says Hardeen is a wonder. He has arranged many other thrilling stunts for the various performances of this week and everyone should make an opportunity to see him.

The other vaudeville features at Keith's are exceptionally good. A lively, dramatic playlet, "The Finish," is presented by four clever actors, with Florence Lorraine in the leading role, as the Swedish scrub woman. Miss Lorraine received a cordial welcome last evening, and was generously applauded for her fine work in a very difficult part. She is well known as an actress of surprising capabilities, and deserves great praise for her work in this new sketch. The supporting company is all that could be desired, and the piece as a whole, is most enjoyable.

The Farber sisters are sure to please in their singing and dancing act, and Mabel Howard is a charming and whimsical little entertainer. There is something doing every minute of the Georgia Trio are on the stage, while Charles Weber, comedy juggler is highly amusing. Hallen and Hayes, comedians, and Farro, shadowgraphist, complete a first-class bill.

Performances are scheduled for every afternoon and evening during the week, and good seats may be obtained at the box office.

Merrimack Square Theatre

The Merrimack Square theatre is showing an exceptionally good bill at the Merrimack Square theatre this week. In addition to several very fine moving pictures, there are three stellar vaudeville features, which help make the entertainment one of the best that has been offered in this theatre for some time. Next week the Temple Players are scheduled to return, and will no doubt receive a hearty welcome back to Lowell.

Yesterday's performance opened with two very amusing photo-plays, "After the Honeymoon" and "An Absent-minded Burglar." Then there were pictures shown by the American Press association, of important doings in the world's history today.

A one-act play, "The Preacher and the Man," was presented by Charles Terris & Co., with Mr. Terris in the leading role of "Father Anthony," assisted by Lily Cret, as his niece, and Nye V. Melshaw, who took the part of the outspoken liquor dealer, "Blunk Scott." The various characters are somewhat overdrawn in their attempt to be realistic, especially that of the priest, who makes certain statements that might be misconstrued when coming from the mouth of a clergyman. However, the play as a whole is effective and has a good dramatic climax.

The Heidelberg Four, who are next on the program, are a jolly company of first class singers. They had a varied repertoire, including the beautiful ballad, "Till the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold," the popular song, "The Girl of the Year," and many others, chiefly of a gay nature. It is always a pleasure to hear good singers, and the Heidelberg Four cannot fail to please.

By this time, no doubt, everyone has heard about Frank Bush and his funny stories. His jokes are the kind that are easily remembered, and yesterday's audiences have advertised him well by repeating almost every word he said so that during the remainder of the week Frank will have to go the limit of his 1000 stories. If he wishes to hold the undivided attention of his listeners, as he did Monday, in the twinkling of an eye, and with no change of costume, except the addition of a pair of spectacles and a pipe at his hair, he can transform himself into an entirely different character—pose, walk, expression, gestures and dialect, with everything true to life, no matter whether he is imitating an Irishman, an Englishman, a Hebrew or a negro. One of his cleverest impersonations was that of a Boston young lady returning on the last boat from Nantasket, Saturday night, in the deplorable condition of being "soused," and eager and ready to tell all her troubles to the world in general and anyone in particular. Bush's stories are all short, snappy and original. He is one of the few men on the vaudeville stage who can lay claim to being really funny, and no one should miss his act in Lowell this week.

Another act on the program that is bound to please is Woodford's animals, with Oscar, the monkey in the leading role. He smokes the pipe, engages in a boxing match with the trainer, and performs a number of other stunts that are really remarkable. The other "characters" in the act are seen to excellent advantage.

Concluding the performance are two motion pictures, "Kings of the Forest" and "The Old Girl in a Jacket." The former is a two reel affair, with the scene laid in the jungle, and contains some fine views of a lion, a house and her cubs.

Performances every day from 1.30 to 10.30 o'clock.

The Playhouse

It was deemed best by the management of the Playhouse to treat patrons to a rich comedy during the present week and as a result of this decision a good sized audience was delighted at the presentation of the three act comedy "Facing the Music." The manner in which the Drama Players presented this sparkling piece was most pleasing and if the production is duly appreciated, the theatre will be crowded at the remaining performances.

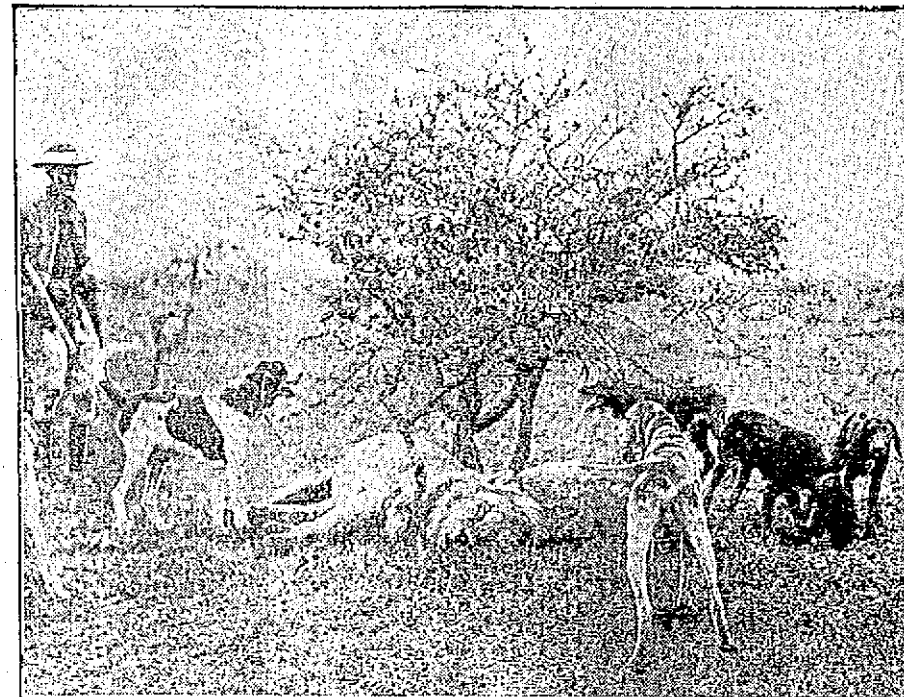

"Facing the Music" is replete with good wholesome fun and laughable situations. These latter are given rise to from the appearance of two Mrs. Smiths at the home of one of the Mr. Smiths and the plot is fast moving and extremely clever of construction; moreover it is not so far fetched as to be absurdly incongruous.

In presentation last night, the Drama Players scored a big success and it was a fine tribute to the skill of Mr. Kendall Weston in making the variety of selections which have pleased the friends of The Drama Players. It was an added proof that these well known actors are equally capable in light comedy and in the more serious drama, an accomplishment which few companies of the kind can boast.

Patrons of the attractive theatre are high in their praise of the scenic arrangements which are beautiful features of all the plays and this was the same from the very beginning. The high standard of taste shown in the arrangement of the stage for the various scenes has been held throughout and lends a distinction to the Playhouse.

For a time the lack of sufficient room on the stage was the cause of some delay in the change of scenery and a rather long interval between the acts was the result. Patrons, however, were patient and did not complain and in spite of the disadvantage, Mr. Weston has made such changes that this delay is now a thing of the past and the time of waiting between the acts of the plays has been greatly diminished.

Mr. Isaac Dillon, one of the most popular members of the company is seen in a leading part this week, that of John Smith, whose misfortune gains for a time the ill favor of his wife. The natural way in which Mr. Dillon has always portrayed any character is even more than ever pleasing in "Facing the Music" and he was accorded a hearty reception by the audience last night. As "Mrs. Smith," Miss Constance Jackson has a difficult part which she handles remarkably well. "Mrs. Smith" returns to her home after a short absence and finds another Mrs. Smith there, which is the result of a series of extremely funny predicaments. Howard Sumner in the character of Colonel Duncansmith, upholds his reputation as the clever comedian of the company. Mrs. Alta Perry Byers made has won numerous friends from the clever manner in which she has portrayed different characters, in past productions and as "Mrs. Ponting," this week she furnishes a good share of the fun. Miss Grace Young is seen in the part of another Mrs. Smith, the wife of the "Rev. John Smith," who unfortunately mistakes another's apartment for his own and takes poster a short absence and finds another Mrs. Smith there, which is the result of a series of extremely funny predicaments. Howard Sumner in the character of Colonel Duncansmith, upholds his reputation as the clever comedian of the company. Mrs. Alta Perry Byers made both worthy of commendation for their contributions to the general success of the play. As "Miss Frothingham" of the Bijou theatre, Miss Laura Tintle is more than usually attractive. The play and the presentation of it are sure to please and all who attend performances during the rest of the week will not be disappointed.

Theatre Vorons

The feature at the Theatre Vorons tonight is "Which is the Savage?" real novelty made by the Lubin company in Arizona and with a cast composed entirely of women. One of the incidents is the placing of an actor over a high cliff and the miraculous escape of its two occupants. "The Tender Hearted Boy," "Ma's Apron Strings" are other features.

PHONE INQUIRY ORDER

Adopted by Massachusetts House

ADVERSE REPORT OF RULES COMMITTEE OVERRULED

Five Oppose Plan to Let Women Receive Notaries—Leave to Withdraw as to Half Pay to Teachers

BOSTON, Jan. 28.—The Massachusetts house yesterday afternoon acted on several matters of importance after comparatively brief discussion. By a vote of 135 to 71 the house overruled the adverse report of the rules committee and substituted therefor the order offered by Representative Martin Hays of Boston for the appointment of a special joint legislative committee to investigate the subject of regulation and revision of telephone rates and service in this commonwealth and especially in the Metropolitan district of Boston.

The order provides for the appointment of a joint committee to consist of three members of the senate and six members of the house to make this proposed investigation. The committee is to determine "what changes, if any, may be necessary to provide a more just and practicable system of charges for the use of the telephone."

The committee is authorized to travel outside the state, to give public hearings, to send for persons and papers, to administer oaths, etc. It is also authorized to employ experts and is directed to report back to the legislature not later than May 1 next.

Order Opposed by White

Representative White of Newton opposed the adoption of the Hays order yesterday afternoon. He pointed out that, as drafted, the order gave a joint legislative committee till May 1 to make an investigation of the whole telephone business of the state. The state highway commissions, who are working out the entire problem, Representative White said, recently spent more than a year in investigating the situation, with a corps of experts, and that investigation cost more than $50,000.

He believed it waste of time to pass an order authorizing a legislative committee of nine to go ahead with an investigation at this time, limited to a few months, within which to make their report, and authorized to expend not more than $5000.

The house, however, adopted the order and now it goes to the senate.

Five Oppose Women Notaries

By a vote of 201 to 5 the house yesterday afternoon agreed to the constitutional amendment making women eligible to be appointed notaries public. There was no suffragette demonstration and there were comparatively few people in the galleries.

Believing there was no demand for the proposed change in the constitution Representative Kennard of Somerville opposed the article of amendment. Representative Sherburne of Braintree favored it. He had voted against the proposition last year, he confessed, but this year, as a member of the committee on constitutional amendments, he had listened to arguments that convinced him there was need of the proposed amendment.

The roll was then called. The five voting against the proposed amendment were Representatives Belding of Springfield, Doyle of New Bedford, Kennard of Somerville, Lomasney of Boston and McCullough of Boston.

"Leave to withdraw" was the verdict yesterday afternoon of the education committee on the petition for legislation to provide that teachers shall receive one-half their regular compensation during vacations. The same adverse finding was reported by the street railways committee on the proposition that street railways be required to equip their stations with escalators.

Rules Committee Action

The house committee on rules voted to recommend the admission of the following petitions:

Of the mayor of Fitchburg, for the establishment of a department of streets and engineering in said city.

How to Be Well.

By Dr. True

Your stomach and bowels are the largest organs in your body.

And the easiest part of you to be abused. You eat all kinds of different foods, you don't chew enough, you bolt your food too fast. Then you neglect your bowels.

Consequence is you get a stomach full of sour, half-digested food and the bowels choked full of filthy waste matter, giving poisons off into the blood and body. Is it any wonder you feel badly?

In my practice I found to many people whose sickness came from bad stomach and bowels that I had a prescription put up and waiting for them.

This prescription became famous as a health giver, so I put it up, naming it Dr. True's Elixir, and you can buy it most everywhere. All druggists and dealers in medicine sell it for 35c, 50c and $1.00. I know a lot of doctors and druggists who use it in their own families, so you see what they think of it! Just remember the name, Dr. True's Elixir. It brings health to men, women and children.

Representatives Stearns and McElrick Dissent

Of A. Franklin Priest, relative to the notice to be given to voters whose names have been omitted from the annual register.

Of Joseph E. Long, for legislation relative to fraternal benefit societies.

Of Luman S. Brown, for an amendment of the law relative to the establishing of building lines on streets and parkways.

Of Calvin Coolidge, that a pension be paid to Lucy A. Gilbert, formerly an employee of the Northampton state hospital.

Of Frank W. Power, for legislation to authorize the Dedham Cooperative bank to hold real estate.

Of Morton E. Cobb, for legislation relative to the retirement of certain officers of the militia.

Action on the child labor order was postponed until the next meeting of the committee.

MESSAGE FROM ROYALTY

Wilson Greeted by King of Spain

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 28.—President-elect Wilson yesterday received personal greetings from the king of Spain through the Marquis de la Vega Inclan, the royal commissioner designated to select a site for the Spanish exhibit at the Panama exposition at San Francisco. It was the first message Mr. Wilson has received from a European ruler.

The president-elect inquired if it were true that King Alfonso would visit the United States soon, and learned that the laws and customs of Spain made it practically impossible for its monarch to leave the country for any length of time.

Cabinet suggestions continued to pour in yesterday. A committee from the National Grange, however, came to discuss the secretaryship of agriculture with the president-elect, but mentioned no names. They simply urged the appointment of a certain type of official who would have "both the sympathy and support of the farmers of the country and who possessed a scientific knowledge of agriculture."

The committee consisted of Prof. T. C. Atkinson, C. O. Raine and Richard Pattee, masters of the state grange of West Virginia, Missouri and New Hampshire respectively.

ESTATE GOES TO DAUGHTER

Will of Henry C. Eddy Left Property to Wife Whom He Killed at Bellport, Long Island

RIVERHEAD, N. Y., Jan. 28.—The wife of Henry C. Eddy, a retired Wall street broker, killed at their home in Bellport, L. I., about a month ago, is the chief beneficiary named in his will filed yesterday for probate. Eddy committed suicide. The value of the estate is estimated at several hundred thousand dollars.

The will is dated just before Eddy and his wife separated. Through Mrs. Eddy's death the property reverts to Mary E. Eddy, the testator's daughter by an earlier marriage.

NEW WARRANTS ORDERED

Judge Meek of Texas Criticizes Atty.-General Wickersham For Interfering in Case of Archibald and Others

DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 28.—Atty.-Gen. Wickersham was criticized yesterday by United States Judge Meek, who said it was a new thing for the judicial department of the federal government to intervene between a court and men who have been indicted, as it did in the cases of J. D. Archibald, H. C. Foster, Jr., and W. C. Finkle, indicted in Judge Meek's court on charges of violating the Sherman anti-trust law in alleged operations affecting the Magnolia Petroleum company.

Mr. Wickersham did not order the arrest of the men on the Texas warrants because, he said, the evidence did not uphold such action.

When the case was called in Judge Meek's court yesterday he ordered new warrants issued for the three.

Well Known Architect Dead

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Louis Deconet Bergh, widely known as an architect, is dead here of heart disease. He designed several of the buildings at Yale university and many structures in New York and Washington, among his most pretentious works in this city being the Church of the Covenant. He was 56 years old.

Powerless to Stop Floods

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Army engineers concluded today that they are practically powerless to contend with the great Brazilian crevasse in the Mississippi river levee system near Greenville, Miss. They can "dike" the ends of the broken levee by driving piling deep into the soft soil and filling in with rock and brush so as to prevent further erosion of the levee, but it is believed to be quite impossible to close the gap between the levee and the river. Meantime, according to Gen. Puxley, chief of engineers, who is personally familiar with the Yazoo country, no less than 1000 square miles of good cotton and corn land probably will be under water until April at least.

LITTLE JOHNNIE CLEM THE LAST CIVIL WAR VETERAN ON ACTIVE LIST

I am the only living Civil War Veteran on the active list of the Army
Very sincerely
John L. Clem

COLONEL JOHN L. CLEM, UNITED STATES ARMY

The Lowell Grand Army men who served in the Civil War, many of them in the battle of Gettysburg, will be interested in the story of John L. Clem now the only Civil War veteran on the active list of the regular army of the United States. Johnnie has an interesting history as the drummer boy of Chickamauga.

Of course John L. Clem is no longer "Little Johnny" Clem. That is scarcely a fitting designation for a man who holds so high a distinction as a colonel in the United States army. But it is greatly to be feared that he will live in history as "Little Johnny" Clem, the drummer boy of Chickamauga, rather than as Colonel or General John L. Clem, the very last veteran of the Civil war to perform active service in the United States army.

That is Colonel Clem's honor, never to be shared by another man, and it would be his boast were he given to boasting. But his kindly, genial, generous nature has no room for vaunting.

Were it not for the fact that Johnny Clem ran away from home to become a soldier in the Union army when he was only ten years old in all likelihood he would not be now the last veteran on the active army roll. And further, if he had not been an almighty good soldier—so good, in fact, that after the war President Grant gave him a commission in the regular army—he would not be now one of the highest officers in the quartermaster's department of the army.

In "Anecdotes, Poetry and Incidents of the War" we find the following account of "Little Johnny" Clem: "Of course you remember the story of Little Johnny Clem, the motherless atom of a drummer boy, aged ten, who strayed away from Newark, O., and the first we knew of him, though small enough to live in a drum, was beating the long roll for the Twenty-second Michigan. At Chickamauga he filled the office of marker, carrying the guidon whereby they form the lines. On the Sunday of the battle, the little fellow's occupation gone, he picked up a gun that had fallen from one dying hand, provided himself with ammunition and began putting in the period quite on his own account, blazing away close to the ground, like a fire in the grass.

"Late in the waning day the waif left almost alone in the whirl of the battle, a Confederate colonel dashed up and, looking down at him, ordered him to surrender, at the same time applying a rifle butt to his head.

"The words were hardly out of his mouth when Johnny brought his piece to 'order arms,' and as his hand slipped down to the hammer he pressed it back, swung up the gun to the position of 'charge bayonet,' and as the officer raised his saber to strike the place aside the glancing barrel lifted into range and the proud colonel tumbled from his horse, his lips fresh stained with the syllable of vile reproach. He was not killed, but survived the war.

"A few swift minutes ticked on by musket shots and the day gunner was swept up and borne away a prisoner. Soldiers, bigger, but not better, were taken with him, only to be washed back again by a surge of federal troops, and the prisoner of thirty minutes was again John Clem of ours." General Rosecrans made him a sergeant and the stripes of rank covered him all over, like a mouse in a harness, and the daughter of Mr. Secretary Chase presented him a silver medal.

This was written in wartime. Since then the drummer boy of Chickamauga has had a long and active and honorable career in the army. His friends—they number thousands in the army and out of it—are impatient for the day when he will wear a general's stars.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—James Thorpe, the Indian athlete and Olympic champion, yesterday admitted that charges of professionalism brought against him were true and formally retired from amateur athletics. Thorpe's confession was contained in a letter to the Amateur Athletic Union which met yesterday to investigate his case.

The letter admitted that Thorpe had played baseball for a salary on a professional team three years ago while he was a student of the Carlisle Indian school, but that on the same team there were several college men from the north who were regarded as amateurs and that Thorpe did not realize his participation in the game was wrong. Thorpe added that he did not play for the money he earned but for the love of the game.

Thorpe's winning of the Pentathlon and Decathlon events at the Olympic games in Stockholm and later his wonderful performance which won for him the all round championship of the A. A. U. at Celtic park last September had stamped him the most marvelous all round athlete of modern times. In addition, his prowess as a football player had earned for him during the past season by unanimous choice of the leading sporting writers the position of half back on the annual all-American football team.

All the prizes and the honors which Thorpe has gained since 1905—the date from which his standing as a professional begins—must be transferred, through the official of the Amateur Athletic Union to the men who finished second to the Indian in every event. This will mean that the trophies and points won in the Pentathlon and Decathlon must be given respectively to F. R. Bie, Norway and H. Wieslander, Sweden, and that J. J. Donahue, United States and O. Lomberg, Sweden, will take second places. John Dredemus of Princeton finished second to Thorpe in the American all round championship and Bruno Broda of the Irish-American Athletic club third, and therefore must now be accorded the honors. In this championship Thorpe made a total score of 7476 points and broke the former record of Martin Sheridan by 21 points.

mouth when Johnny brought his piece to 'order arms,' and as his hand slipped down to the hammer he pressed it back, swung up the gun to the position of 'charge bayonet,' and as the officer raised his saber to strike the place aside the glancing barrel lifted into range and the proud colonel tumbled from his horse, his lips fresh stained with the syllable of vile reproach. He was not killed, but survived the war.

"A few swift minutes ticked on by musket shots and the day gunner was swept up and borne away a prisoner. Soldiers, bigger, but not better, were taken with him, only to be washed back again by a surge of federal troops, and the prisoner of thirty minutes was again John Clem of ours." General Rosecrans made him a sergeant and the stripes of rank covered him all over, like a mouse in a harness, and the daughter of Mr. Secretary Chase presented him a silver medal.

This was written in wartime. Since then the drummer boy of Chickamauga has had a long and active and honorable career in the army. His friends—they number thousands in the army and out of it—are impatient for the day when he will wear a general's stars.

CONFESSION, BY THORPE

Indian Athlete Admits He is "Pro"

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—James Thorpe, the Indian athlete and Olympic champion, yesterday admitted that charges of professionalism brought against him were true and formally retired from amateur athletics. Thorpe's confession was contained in a letter to the Amateur Athletic Union which met yesterday to investigate his case.

The letter admitted that Thorpe had played baseball for a salary on a professional team three years ago while he was a student of the Carlisle Indian school, but that on the same team there were several college men from the north who were regarded as amateurs and that Thorpe did not realize his participation in the game was wrong. Thorpe added that he did not play for the money he earned but for the love of the game.

Thorpe's winning of the Pentathlon and Decathlon events at the Olympic games in Stockholm and later his wonderful performance which won for him the all round championship of the A. A. U. at Celtic park last September had stamped him the most marvelous all round athlete of modern times. In addition, his prowess as a football player had earned for him during the past season by unanimous choice of the leading sporting writers the position of half back on the annual all-American football team.

All the prizes and the honors which Thorpe has gained since 1905—the date from which his standing as a professional begins—must be transferred, through the official of the Amateur Athletic Union to the men who finished second to the Indian in every event. This will mean that the trophies and points won in the Pentathlon and Decathlon must be given respectively to F. R. Bie, Norway and H. Wieslander, Sweden, and that J. J. Donahue, United States and O. John Dredemus of Princeton finished second to Thorpe in the American all round championship and Bruno Broda of the Irish-American Athletic club third, and therefore must now be accorded the honors. In this championship Thorpe made a total score of 7476 points and broke the former record of Martin Sheridan by 21 points.

THREE DOLLARS PER YEAR. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER MONTH

OUR FIRE LOSSES

According to the New York Journal of Commerce, the fire losses of the United States for the year ending December 31, 1912, amounted to $225,320,900. This is about nine million dollars less than the total loss for 1911, and shows a tendency in the right direction.

Owing to the greater vigilance of insurance companies and police departments, a great many convolutions have resulted for incendiary fires. The extent to which incendiarism is carried on may be judged in some measure from the fact that an arson trust has been discovered in New York, in which a large number of men were engaged in the business of burning stores and houses, in order to get the insurance. They had a regular system of practicing fraud upon insurance companies and escaping punishment. They resorted to very ingenious methods in settling the fires so that the actual origin could not be traced but the police have been equally ingenious in finding out the devices adopted for this purpose. They have induced some of the culprits to turn state's evidence and one of them has testified that certain members of the trust manufactured gasoline sausages for the purpose of starting fires in meat markets, where there was an absence of material of a combustible character.

It is true that during the past year there was no very great calamity such as the burning down of an entire city or the devastation by forest fires. There was no fire like that of San Francisco or Chelsea to add abnormally to the total loss.

Losses for the year are therefore low, and the fact that the total amount is so much less than that of the previous year may have resulted in part from the increase of fire-proof construction of buildings. All over the country there is a movement for the prevention of fires and for the promotion of fire-proof construction. The steel and cement buildings are becoming popular on account of their offering greater resistance to fire and therefore greater security to the occupants. This movement should be encouraged everywhere.

The city government of Lowell and of every other city in the country should prevent the construction of flimsy buildings that are liable to become an easy prey to the flames, and should encourage fire-proof construction wherever possible as a means of safety to life and property. There has been during the past year a diminution in the loss by forest fires. Many states throughout the country have adopted strict laws to prevent fires in all wooded districts. Boys who have been prone to start brush fires have become more cautious knowing that they are now liable to fall into the hands of the police.

In addition to the other tendencies, there has been progress in the more effective methods of fighting fires, so that fire departments respond more promptly and prevent loss by extinguishing fire before it has time to spread. The change from horse-drawn vehicles to motor engines and auto fire trucks enables fire departments to reach the scene of the fire more quickly than would otherwise be possible. This counts for more than is generally supposed because it often happens that a difference of five, ten or fifteen minutes in getting a stream upon a fire is all the difference between an inchoate blaze and a disastrous conflagration.

The amount of the fire loss of last year shows that greater care has been exercised and it indicates also what can be accomplished by a combination of the forces of prevention and effective fire fighting which must go hand in hand in order to reduce the fire loss from year to year.

COME OVER, ALFONSO

King Alfonso of Spain is desirous of visiting the United States next summer, and it is intimated by his government that he may be advised to do so if such a trip would meet with the approval of our own government. Upon this score there need be no question. The young ruler of the Spaniards is in very good favor here, because he is looked upon as one of the most democratic of the European rulers. He has shown a very lively interest in the affairs of the world ever since he was old enough to travel, and he has made friends wherever he has gone by his sincerity and his enthusiasm.

It is no flattery to be a king in these days of tottering thrones, and especially of such a tradition-bound country as Spain. Alfonso has been breaking traditions ever since he came into power as a very young man. When a disaster occurred at the military barracks in his capital he did not wait to be formally notified, as was customary, but rushed over there alone and took personal charge. When he became interested in automobile driving he would not content himself with the official drives, awarded by his police, but ran his own machine and went far into the country as other young men love to do. When his ministers politely intimated that it was time for him to select a bride, he slipped over to England, where he had already fallen in love with a princess, and proposed to her. The marriage has been a very happy one, in spite of the predictions made by the old ladies of both countries. One attempt was made to kill him in Paris, and another in his own country, and he showed great personal courage on both occasions.

If Alfonso comes over to the United States there will be a hearty reception awaiting him at the hands of the republic that stripped him of his colonial possessions. Our people would be glad to show him that they bear him no ill will. They know that he has done his best to make good in a difficult position. And if he comes, and his itinerary takes him to Boston, let our board of trade see to it that he is urged to take a side trip of inspection to the Spindle City, where distinguished visitors before him have found much to interest them.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE TACTICS

Romance is not dead, and will not be, so long as women—or a great many of them—demand the right to vote. For months they have invaded all our spheres of activity with a virility until recently undiscovered in the gentler sex. We read with pleasure, and a quickening of the pulse, that on the day before the inauguration of President Wilson, fully ten thousand women will parade through the streets of the capital, in a great allegorical pageant. Whether the cause will gain materially from such tactics we are unable to say, but it is equally problematic whether it will lose because of this picturesque exploitation.

How very different are the reports from our trans-Atlantic sisters; outrage after outrage has been committed there in the name of the cause; rights of person and property have been violated. Perhaps it is unjust to blame the movement for the actions of individuals, or even the concerted action of organized violence, in certain sections; but results have shown that such tactics have injured the cause. Here even those who oppose woman suffrage do so without the intense opposition shown in England by a public, made bitter and prejudiced by the mistaken zeal of frenzied women. The fact that the movement is progressing more rapidly in this country than in England should convince the British extremists that they are on the wrong track when they attack public officials or resort to violence in any form.

NEW ENGLAND GOVERNORS

The conference of five New England governors to consider railroad matters affecting their respective states, favored a joint commission to make a thorough investigation of the railroad conditions and report such recommendations as they might see fit to make. Possibly this commission will take a more general view of the railroad needs of New England than would a commission of any particular state. We believe that this general action may result in some good, inasmuch as heretofore each state has been hammering away at some particular railroad or some particular phase of railroad shortcomings. It will be a relief if they can unite upon a definite policy that will advance the interests of all the New England states.

There were, in all eleven phases of the railroad question specified for investigation, the adjustment of any of which would mean a decided change in existing conditions.

The most optimistic among us must not expect much more from such conferences than has resulted in instances of a similar kind in the past. Conditions are different in the different states, and the laws governing those conditions still more so. The states will gain rather than lose, other things being equal, by uniting their influence for their common good.

THE LINCOLN MONUMENT

The lower house of congress seems unable to agree as to the form which the proposed Lincoln memorial at Washington shall take. Two plans are being considered, one contemplating a national boulevard from Washington to Gettysburg, which has a sentimental aim and the other the erection of a $2,000,000 memorial in Washington on the banks of the Potomac, which should take the form of a Greek temple containing a statue of Lincoln. If any memorial be decided upon it seems a pity that Lincoln, a distinctively American type, should not be honored by a truly American memorial. In the Greek sense, there was nothing classical in the physical make-up of the great president, and we wonder if he could conform himself, even in effigy, to the severe lines of a Greek temple.

ALICE AND MAY

Did you read that talk on "Poisons" that Dr. Tins gave to the Lowell policemen the other day, Alice?

Yes, I read every bit of it—and I don't often read things like that. It was mighty interesting, though I can't remember a word of it now. I've got it out of the paper and put it away in the bureau drawer, and if my brother ever takes his poison by mistake, I'll know just what to do for him.

Why don't you read the article over and over, until you know it by heart, Alice? It's a good thing to know.

Is that what you're going to do, May? I guess I'll try it when I get round to it, but I wonder how the policemen will remember it, though?

"They'll do it all right. The Lowell policemen are pretty smart."

The only part of that poison speech I can think of now, is that to get an antidote for an acid poison, you can cut a piece of plaster out of a wall or a window, dip it in water, and give it to the sick person. We just had our house plastered and papered, and again last week, and I hate to hear what my father would say if he saw me dipping a hole in the wall, even if it was to mix up a plaster drink for my dying brother.

That would be hard on the poor poisoned person, May. But say, Mayor O'Donnell's ideas about improving the police force are good, don't you think so?

Yes, they are. It's up to the policeman now, to do their part.

I was reading an article about policemen the other day. It was written by a woman, and she said that we never speak to an officer of the law except when we want to make a complaint; we never invite them socially to our homes; and we make them associate with people whom we wouldn't have anything to do with.

Those things are mostly true, too. People don't realize what a thankless job it is to be a cop.

Especially in New York, where they sent the policemen to jail or to the electric chair for such slight misdeemeanors.

But nothing like that ever happens in Lowell, Alice.

No, but if we had a couple of Finney in Lowell, there's no telling what would happen.

The rich men in Lowell don't leave their money to the police when they die, do they?

I see that Stunt Welch wants a raise, I hope he gets it.

Yes, I do, too. I heard my father talking about it, but he said that the superintendent did such good work during the strike, that he deserves more pay. But, how about that article on policemen, Alice?

Oh, yes, May—I was telling you about it. Well, the woman goes on to say that we ought to treat our policemen better, more like human beings. I'm sure I don't know just what she means.

Why, I think they're treated decent enough. I don't think anybody's going about the streets ought to stop and have a friendly conversation with the cops on the street corners.

Perhaps she does—you never can tell just what these lady reformers want. I wish she could see the officers marching down Central street every morning. The Strong Arm Squad is what I call them—why, if a girl stopped one of them to have a friendly chat with him, I bet he'd arrest her for flirting with a non-sensicality of the law, or on some other serious charge like that.

The lady surely didn't mean that. She meant that the people as a whole ought to be kinder to the policemen. That sounds nice, May, but how would they do it? Open Association hall every tea and judge and home-made cake to the blue-coats? I think they have a good enough time as it is, and moreover, Mayor O'Donnell has promised to raise their pay 25 cents a day which is the best kind of treatment I know of.

She Was So Ill—Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Pentwater, Mich.—"A year ago I was very weak and the doctor said I had a serious displacement. I had backache and bearing down pains so bad that I could not sit in a chair or walk across the floor and I was in severe pain all the time. I felt discouraged as I had taken everything I could think of and was no better. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I am strong and healthy."—Mrs. ALICE DARLING, R.F.D. No. 2, Box 77, Pentwater, Mich.

Read What Another Woman Says: Peoria, Ill.—"I had such backaches that I could hardly stand on my feet. I would feel like crying out lots of times, and had such a heavy feeling in my right side. I had such terrible dull headaches every day and they would make me feel so drowsy and sleepy all the time, yet I could not sleep at night. After I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a week I began to improve. My backache was less and that heavy feeling in my side went away. I continued to take the Compound and am cured."

"You may publish this if you wish."—Miss CLARA L. GAUWITZ, R.R. No. 4, Box 62, Peoria, Ill.

Seen and Heard

"Books Received." "Books Delivered." These "blatantly" signs decorate that department of the city library, which attends to the giving out and reading of books, to a tired and pre-occupied public. Instead of being a help they are a positive hindrance, as we can affirm from experience, further strengthened by a talk with one of the obliging young ladies, whose duties are unnecessarily complicated by the necessity of issuing constant instructions to people, who, confused by the signs, go to the wrong window, whether receiving or returning books.

They are reviving the old story of the correspondence between Victor Hugo and his publisher on the issue of "Les Misérables." Very busy but anxious to know how the book was selling, Hugo sent the publisher a card marked simply "?" The reply came back "??"

This recalls the Cleveland man—no longer young—who had been promised an early answer to his proposal of marriage, and finally, becoming impatient, wrote as follows:

"When can I come up and get the answer to my 'Z'?"

The clever young woman promptly replied "Z", long.

Which, being deciphered, meant "comica long."

It is pleasing to relate that when the wooer had "come along" the young woman put a full stop to his anxiety.

The recent anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns, turned the talk among several of the Westerners at dinner, Sunday, toward the immortal Scot. From our conversation it was easy to note that all of us had an intimate acquaintance with "Rabbi Burns' better known poems and though none happened to be of that particular branch of the Gaelic family, that we all looked upon him as our best-loved poet. And why should we not this be so? "Twas Burns who said:

"Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn," and the great meaning of these words have never been surpassed in song or story.

Burns is the poet of the people. The tenderness that rings in every syllable of his serious verses, finds a responsive echo in the hearts of all men, irrespective of their nationality. Whether he sings of the freestone or the heather, of a canny lassie or a thuy-bell mouse he sings with an earnestness and beauty that never has and undoubtedly never will be surpassed. The grandeur of nature he saw with a thousand eyes. And with his homely phrases he painted it in thoughts and words of such exquisite beauty that they will live in the hearts of men for all time. The upright and simple lives of the peasant folks about him, he loved only as a soul inspired by the loftiest ideals can love and in giving words to these traits of his people, as in "The Cotter's Saturday Night," he makes the eye beam with tenderness and the heart beat with the keenest sympathy. The largeness of his heart, too, is manifest in the thoughts that pervade those simple, touching poems "To a Mouse" and "To a Mountain Daisy."

On reading them one instantly realizes that the man who gave expression to them felt a love that reached to the loftiest things in life. And he who has even the slightest love for an old friend, an old home, it is certain cannot help but feel that the heart which poured forth the noble sentiments which have made "Rabbi Burns" loved wherever English is spoken, was one as steadfast and as true as ever dwelt in mortal bosom.

An appropriate Burns has been called the "ploughman poet." But what a ploughman! His large dark eyes, quotes Stevenson, "literally glowed" as he spoke. And though a ploughman, his conversation was with such vigor and eloquence that even the intellectual who sought his society found it expedient to, as they say, take a second seat. The acquaintance of those years, never faded, had effect upon the disposition of the poet. Courted though he was by the great, this ploughman "never turned his back, even for a moment, on his old associates and he was always ready to sacrifice an acquaintance to a friend, although the acquaintance were a duke." Probably this statement is an overstatement, but it would have had the bonds of reason to imagine that so noble a character as that of Burns would sink toward ignominy merely because of an intimacy with the great. The ploughman poet loved his own, first, last and all the time.

"Affliction's sons are brothers in distress," said a Crawfordsville admirer.

"A brother to relieve—now exquisite the bliss!"

And when we but glance at Burns' matchless descriptions of the quiet heaths and rugged hills and placid streams of Ayrshire and recall the hardships which he overcame, we had no life, we instinctively feel the same emotion which overpowered him when writing:

"Ye banks and braes o' bonny Doon,
How can ye lie here, ye bonny broods,
And I see want, ye little birds."

"How can ye want, ye little birds,
And I see want, ye little birds?"

All types of men, a poet rises to the sublime heights of his art, of his country. Should we marvel then that the ploughman poet whose heart could be touched by the plight of a wee field mouse should rise to majestic grandeur when inspired by the fate of his native land? and give voice to those exalted sentiments:

"O Scotia, my dear, my native soil,
For whom my warmest wish in Heaven is sent,
Long may thy hardy sons of rustic
Heaven be sent."

"For whom my warmest wish in Heaven is sent."

"Long may thy hardy sons of rustic
Heaven be sent."

"Be blest with health, and peace, and sweet content."

"And, O, may Heaven their simple
From luxury's contagion, weak and vile."

"Then, however crews and coronets be sent."

"A virtuous populace may rise the white."

"And stand a wall of fire around their much-loved Isle."

to a good cat story which is credited to him by a Crawfordsville admirer.

The mayor, this writer alleges, received two white cats by parcel post from Crawtown. They were nice, country-bred cats, and the woman who sent them sought good homes and a little change for them in Indianapolis.

During a full at the city market Mr. Shank offered the cats for sale. In his own inimitable way he cried them to a crowd.

"Here they are—two fine, house-broke Tabby cats—whatamfidd—whatamfidd—"

"What, their names, Lew?" asked a heckler.

SUSPEND 11 GIRLS

Fitchburg Normal School Students

Were Exposed to Measles 24 New Cases Reported in Fitchburg

FITCHBURG, Jan. 25.—As a result of measles among students at the State Normal school, 11 girls, who were exposed to a girl who is ill, were suspended yesterday by order of Dr. F. H.

Thompson, chairman of the board of health, after a conference with Principal John G. Thompson. The 11 girls went to their homes.

The agent of the board of health reported yesterday 24 new cases of measles. There are several children who are ill and many of them have symptoms of measles.

RHODE ISLAND MILLS HIT

Garment Workers' Strike in New York Causes Curtailment—1000 Idle in Consequence

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 25.—With a slackening demand for fabrics used in garment-making, caused by the New York strike, mill operatives are being laid off in this state, and last night it was stated that 1000 are already idle in consequence, 400 of them being in Burrillville alone.

Many cotton and woolen mills in the state have ceased shipping goods to New York, except on written request of the buyer.

The F. L. Sayles & Co. mill in Passacon, employing about 250, closed down for a week. The Stillwater Worsted mills in Harrisville discontinued night work and about 150 people are thrown temporarily out of work as a result.

WILSON STUDIES IMMIGRATION PROBLEM ON VISIT TO ELLIS ISLAND WITH HIS FAMILY

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—One of the questions that President Wilson will have to pass on will be that of immigration, and he has already begun to acquire definite information on the subject. He made what might be called a semi-official visit to Ellis Island, accompanied by his wife and two of his daughters, and under the guidance of Commissioner of Immigration Williams he saw how strangers are admitted to the United States or are told that they must be deported. Governor Wilson did not make a thorough inspection of the institution. He was shot through the works too fast for that. Commissioner Williams kept him going like a bullet from a gun in order that he might see as much as possible in a few hours. If

Mr. Wilson was impressed or otherwise moved by what he saw he did not show it. For the most part his replies to Mr. Williams' explanations were monosyllabic, and he had few questions to ask. He was interested, but not eager. In fact, Mr. Williams did not give him much chance. But he was closely and severely attentive to everything.

SAIL FROM BOSTON BUT FIRST SEE NEW ENGLAND

The New England Railroad Lines have now put in circulation nearly half a million illustrated pamphlets, in the form of a railroad folder, entitled as above, and still invite the public to freely accept of them and enclose them in the envelopes in which they send letters or accounts to their correspondents, especially in the West.

This folder is in two sizes and can be enclosed in either a large or small envelope without increasing the postage. They may be had of any of the 2100 station agents of the New England Lines or in large lots from Room 492, South Station, Boston.

It shows the relative size of the earliest and latest in ocean liners, maps the ocean routes of the six passenger lines from Boston; gives sailing dates of the steamers from Boston for 1913, the location and rates of the more than thirty first-class hotels in Boston and details the attractions in and around Boston for a stop-over by the ocean tourist.

The slogan, "Sail From Boston, But First See New England" has been taken up in Chicago and the West most responsively.

Let us continue to forward the slogan from New England and assist in arousing the whole country to the advantages of New England, not only as a sailing port, but as the summer resort and vacation ground for the whole United States. The New England Railroad Lines can be relied upon for their part in the co-operative upbuilding of New England.

SEAT AT INAUGURATION

Kansas Man Wants to Attend Exercises

VOWED NEVER TO HAVE HAIR CUT UNTIL DEMOCRAT WON
Wants to be Located in Section Easily Accessible to Barber Shop—Committee to Reserve Seat

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Although the first balls in the inauguration grandstands have not yet been driven, Representative George Neilly of Kansas called on the inaugural committee today to reserve him one seat that must be within view of the spot where President-elect Wilson will be sworn in on March 4, must be easy to escape from immediately after that ceremony, and must be easily accessible to a barber shop. Mr. Neilly wants the seat for a constituent, E. F. Boxwell of Kansas, who in 1896 took a vow never to have his hair defied by a barber's shears until a democrat took the oath of office as president of the United States.

"This man's hair, I am informed, is now 44 inches or feet or something long," said Mr. Neilly, "and you can't blame him for wanting to lose some of it as soon after the inauguration as is reasonably possible." Mr. Neilly then produced the pathetic plea of the man from Kansas. The letter read: "Secure for me a seat on the inaugural stand; I want to see Governor Wilson lift his right hand and take the oath of office. Then me for a barber shop." It was announced formally today that the section of the reviewing stand from which President Wilson and Vice President Marshall and their immediate families will observe the parade, will be sheathed in glass. The remainder of the stand, however, will be open to the chill breezes.

Brinkley Girls

A largely attended meeting of the Brinkley Girls was held at the home of their president last Friday evening. Considerable business was transacted and the election of new officers took place. The officers chosen are as follows: President, Miss Loretta Campbell; vice president, Miss Mae Gillick; treasurer, Miss Annie Boyle; secretary, Miss Catherine Gillick. After the business session a social hour was enjoyed. Vocal selections were given by Miss Mae Higgins, and a very interesting reading was delivered by Miss Mae Brecken. Vocal selections were rendered by Miss May Moran, and also by a quartet composed of the Misses Mary Collins, Rose Campbell, Alice Healy and Agnes Gillick. The Misses Lena Gillick and Della Boyle presided at the piano. Refreshments were served and the meeting was brought to a close at an early hour, all having heartily enjoyed the session.

Wanted Confederate Notes Redeemed
WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Publication recently of a pathetic appeal of a New York mother for the redemption by the government of two ten dollar Confederate notes to obtain bread for her four children excited the charity of a woman in New York, who in a letter received by President Taft offered to investigate the case and relieve the family's distress. The treasury department will supply the name and address of the needy family.

INJURY TO EYE

ALL YOU NEED IS A CASCARET TONIGHT.

NO HEADACHE, SOUR STOMACH, BILIOUSNESS OR CONSTIPATION BY MORNING

Turn the rascals out—the headache, the biliousness, the indigestion, the sick, sour stomach and foul gases—turn them out tonight and keep them out with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse and regulate your stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and that misery-making gas; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from any drug store means a clear head, sweet stomach and clean, healthy liver and bowel action for months.

Children love to take Cascarets because they taste good—never gripe or sicken.

BALTIC POOL DESCRIBED YOUNG BANDIT KILLED

To the House Shipping Was Shot by Telephone
Trust Committee Operator

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The Baltic pool was described to the house shipping trust committee today by J. A. McArthur, of Philadelphia, freight agent for the Scandinavian-American line, who testified that the Hamburg-American, North German Lloyd, Wilson and Scandinavian-American lines pooled their business and maintained identical rates on the trade between the United States and Baltic ports. He said there was no agreement as to a division of the business, as far as he knew, that each line was free to operate between any of the American Atlantic or gulf ports and any of the 150 or more ports on the Baltic.

BOSTON, Jan. 28.—The wearing by women of hatpins that are a menace to the public must be prohibited in this state. This is the conclusion of the legislative committee after hearing both men and women on the subject today. It recommended the adoption of a law making it a misdemeanor for a woman to permit the pointed end of a pin to protrude more than a half an inch from the side of her hat unless the end is covered with some device rendering it harmless.

All are popular socially and much in demand for dances and balls.

DON'T SCOLD AN IRRITABLE CHILD.

If Tongue is Coated, Stomach Sour, Breath Fervid, Give "Syrup of Figs" to Clean the Bowels

Your child isn't naturally cross, irritable and peevish. Mother! Examine the tongue; if coated, it means the little one's stomach is disordered, liver sluggish and its thirty feet of bowels clogged with thick, decaying waste.

Every mother realizes after giving the delicious "Syrup of Figs" that this is the ideal laxative and physic for children. Nothing else regulates the little one's tender stomach, liver and bowels so effectively, besides they dearly love its fig taste.

Poisonous bowels, sluggish liver, biliousness, or sour, disordered stomach, feverishness, diarrhea, sore throat, bad breath or to break a cold, give one-half to a teaspoonful of "Syrup of Figs" and in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile, undigested food and constipated matter will gently move on and out of the system without giving or nausea, and you will surely have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious, healthy, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Peter Moore, a young bandit, was shot and fatally wounded by Clarence McSweeney, a police telephone operator last night. Moore admitted today having participated with his brother Albert, in more than 20 holdups on the South Side during the last six weeks. Shortly after making the confession he died. The brothers stopped McSweeney, who is a cripple, as he was returning to his home late at night. McSweeney commenced shooting. Three bullets struck Peter Moore, who returned the fire one bullet striking McSweeney in the hip, but not seriously wounding him. Albert Moore escaped but later was captured.

FOR THEFT OF GOWNS

Valued at $1000 Charge
Against Weir

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Jan. 28.—Lieut. Weir of the 19th Infantry is under arrest at Fort Mackenzie charged with the theft of gowns valued at $1000 from the home of Capt. J. S. Cecil, a brother officer. Although Weir's arrest occurred two days ago the fact was not made known until he was released last night on $500 bail. Mrs. Weir is visiting in Houston, Texas. It is charged that the theft occurred while Lieut. Weir and his wife were occupying the Cecil apartments during the latter's temporary absence. Capt. Cecil is in Washington, where he was summoned to be presented with a medal of honor for gallantry in the Philippine war. Weir was captain of the 1910 football team at West Point.

1200 OUT OF WORK

A General Lockout at Rochester, N. Y.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 28.—Every clothing factory in Rochester was closed today in pursuance of the manufacturers' decision to meet the operators' strike with a general lockout. It is estimated that there are 1200 operatives now out of employment. While the members of the United Garment-workers union say they are prepared for a long siege they have named a committee of seven to confer with the manufacturers with a view of reaching a basis of negotiation. Recognition of their union is one of the main points in this dispute.

REDUCE MOHAIR TARIFF

Proposition Considered
by Committee

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—With only a few witnesses left the house committee investigating the tariff schedules went on to clean up hearings on Schedule K, admittedly the storm center of the tariff question of the coming extra session of congress. In the hearings so far it has been indicated that the democrats intend to revise the wool tariff along the lines of the wool bills of 1911 and 1912, voted by President Taft.

Mohair, used in the manufacture of clothing for felt, plushes, and other purposes, has for a long time been reduced to 10 to 20 per cent ad valorem. Johnna Robertson of Del Rio, Texas, an Angora goat producer, pleaded today for a specific rate of 10 cents a pound, equivalent to the present 10 per cent duty.

Chairman Underwood pointed out that it was the raw material for great industries and although now a luxury it was every day becoming more of a necessity.

FOUND DEAD IN BED

as "Peanut Merchant"

NANTUCKET, Jan. 28.—Elisha Pope E. Gardner, the "peanut merchant" of Nantucket and a most eccentric citizen, was found dead in his bed at his lonely home at Peet's corner today. Death was due to heart failure.

Mr. Gardner was 50 years old. During the Civil war he served as a spy under General Benjamin Butler. His little home in which he lived alone for 20 years was one of the island's points of interest for the summer visitor as its walls were covered with short poems and couplets which he had composed.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

MULFORD AND HARRY ENDICOTT DEMONSTRATORS BUSY

Are to Participate in the International Sweepstakes Race

Anxious to add more laurels to his already brilliant record, Harry Endicott, one of the most daring and skillful speed pilots in the United States, will drive a Nyberg car in the third annual 300-mile International Sweepstakes race which will be staged at the Indianapolis motor speedway, Memorial day. Formal entry of the car has been made by the manufacturers, and this is the first time in the history of the Nyberg that one of its cars has been entered in a race. The car is now in course of construction, and while Driver Endicott is superintending the work, it will be practically a stock car. It will have a piston displacement of 330 cubic inches, and great consideration is placed in the wire wheels, with which the car will be equipped. These, it is believed, will prevent tire trouble, a factor which enters largely into the chances of winning a race. Endicott was entered in 15 races last year. As roller driver for his brother, "Bill" Endicott, he drove 350 miles of the 500-mile race held at the Indianapolis motor speedway in 1912, and was given credit for fifth place. Later, at Galveston, Texas, he won first place in six races, and in the "Omaha" race for all he captured the second prize, being defeated only by a 90-horsepower Mercedes. The following day he secured second place in a 200-mile race for all, in which his car with a piston displacement of 225 cubic inches was defeated by a Simplex-Zip, having a displacement of 555.

At Elgin, Illinois, Endicott again added to his fame as a driver when he won the Jenkins trophy in a 101-mile race, breaking the record for the course by six miles an hour. At Milwaukee, Endicott was the winner of the Wisconsin Challenge Trophy, driving a Mason car.

It is highly probable that two or more of these cars will also be entered in the 500-mile race at Indianapolis. Arrangements toward this end are being made by P. S. Duesenberg, of Des Moines, Iowa, designer of the engine which is being used in the Mason racing car. These cars show by past performances that they will be able to give a good account of themselves in the big speed contest, and at the Milwaukee races last fall it was a Mason car that won the Cabot Trophy. Mort Roberts was at the steering wheel in this race, and when his teammate, Endicott, walked away with the Challenge Cup, the makers of the Mason car felt that they had made a good start in the racing game.

Since then Harry Mulford, driving a Mason car, won the Election Day Derby at Brighton Beach, doing the hundred miles in a fraction over 101 minutes. He ran against a field of prominent cars, all of which were faster than the Mason. Mulford, it is understood, will drive one of the Masons entered in the 500-mile race, and a special car is being built for this purpose. It will have a piston displacement of 350 cubic inches, with cylinders 4.5-16.5. It will be remembered that Mulford won the Grand Prize in 1909, driving a Lozier, and in 1911, when the first 500-mile race was held at the Indianapolis motor speedway, he won second place, crossing the tape a second and a half after the winning Marmion.

An Auto Ailment
Is there such a thing as an automobile disease styled "Imaginities"? Service Expert A. J. Hamilton of the Cole Motor Car Company, Indianapolis, Ind., says there is. He backs his opinion up with comparison statements from fellow employees and from his own experience. Hamilton, who is one of the pioneer automobile men entering the business, says the cure for this disease is for motor owners to let their cars more alone and not to pay as much attention to alleged motor ills. "This disease is not at all prevalent. It is not exactly contagious," the Cole man says, "but, seriously, I had known service men from other factories have met people who are unknowingly affected with it. I have had persons come to me and insist that their car was all wrong. They imagined they heard a noise in the motor. I would tell them to leave their car. 'Test that car as I would, I could not locate a noise. Now, it were to tell the owner that there was nothing I could do in the way of a noise he would say I did not know my business. Well, one has to be prevaricate. The answer is, the owner takes his car out and the next day tells me that it is fine. He appreciates what I have done. As a matter of fact, I did not turn a nut."

"Then, again, I have gone miles out in the country to fix a particular hard job, to find the owner was out of gasoline. "Time after time I find that trouble is in-carburation. Some owners will not leave these adjustments alone. The result is, of course, inaccuracy in motor timing."

The cylinders in a motor car will not get dusty, they will not knock if the owner will do what he is told and no more. The big solution of motor driving today is to give your car sufficient oil, gasoline and water, and leave the rest of it alone. "I do find that there is less trouble with people who know a little about a motor car than with those who know or pretend to know a whole lot. It is the motor-wise who do not get the best service out of their cars. This applies to all makes."

Large Shipments of Buicks
The Buick Motor company has again distinguished itself as among the largest shippers of first class freight in the world by means of a special trainload of 75 cars containing 350 Buick automobiles valued at practically $500,000, which were sent to the agency at San Francisco recently.

Every year at this time mammoth trainloads of Buick automobiles leave the Flint, Mich., factories for various points, and the Howard Automobile company of San Francisco has always been one of those who receive the largest allotments. So impressed by the magnitude of such a shipment was the San Francisco board of trade, that a letter was written by its president and secretary to the Buick agent, congratulating him upon such an achievement.

WILL NOT BE CANDIDATE TO CALL GENERAL STRIKE

J. J. McManmon Retires Of the Garment Workers
From Official Life In Chicago

HAS SERVED TOWN OF DRACUT FOR FOURTEEN YEARS

Was Treasurer For Twelve Years
Wants to Let Some One Else Handle Town's Finances

The Dracut democratic town committee held a meeting at J. C. Mahoney's store in Colthamville for the purpose of making out the list of candidates for the coming town election. A surprise was sprung at the meeting when it was announced that Treasurer James J. McManmon, who has held that office for the past twelve years after serving two years as selectman, did not want to be a candidate for the said position this year. The latter was urged to place his name on the list, but he absolutely refused to do so because he felt he had long enough and he wished to let some other good democrat tackle the job.

Finally when it was seen that Mr. McManmon would not be a candidate the name of Nicholas Gallagher was proposed. The others who have filed their intentions to date are as follows: Town clerk, John W. Brennan; treasurer, Nicholas Gallagher; selectman, Martin J. Banks, John Madden; assessor, Michael Whelan; town wardens, Thomas Carlick, Albert Marshall; school committee, Bernard Maguire, John H. Gillick; library trustees, Patrick Cassidy.

Mr. McManmon, when seen by the committee meeting and his candidacy said "I do not feel as though I want to play selfish on the matter. I have held the position of town treasurer for the past twelve years, and now I want others to handle the town's finances. I do not want my fellow townsmen or others to believe that I am going back on my party, on the contrary I will work as hard for the welfare of the party and the town as I would if I were in office. I wish to let others be candidates and if it is the wish of the voters to elect them they may do so. I was interviewed a couple of weeks ago by several democrats and republicans relative to my candidacy, as they had learned I would not run for office. They did all in their power to have me elected, but I refused. I also, however, suggested that some other democrat be named."

Again this morning another delegation called on me, but I am firm in my decision and will not run for any office this year. However, I take this opportunity to thank my many friends from both political parties for the cordial and generous support. I have also given up in the past, but I have always been unsolicited. Although I will not be one of the town officials, I will always do my utmost for the welfare of Dracut while, of course, I feel grateful to the democratic party for the honors conferred on me.

Rev. John Lyons, Fred Reardon, and Eugene McSweeney. At the grave home, Father Cornell, O. M. I. read the committal prayers and the burial was in St. Patrick's cemetery in charge of Undertakers J. F. O'Donnell & Sons.

Easy Way to Cleanse the Hair and Scalp
"Nature intended that every woman should have a wealth of beautiful hair—that hair that can be arranged into an attractive coiffure which accentuates her physical charms." writes Mrs. Mac Martin, beauty authority.

"Much depends upon the cleansing of the scalp and hair follicles, and the hair grows dull, brittle and falls out. A shampoo mixture made by dissolving one teaspoonful of salt in a cup of hot water gently rubbed thoroughly, removes every trace of dust and dandruff and so energizes the hair-roots and delicate tissues that they become strong and healthy. After rinsing the scalp is clean and pliant and the hair is soft, glossy and easy to do up. Canthrox shampoos not only cleanse a healthy condition, but encourage an abundant and silky growth of hair."

The Parcel Post System is Working Satisfactorily Throughout the United States
Map Shows Zone System With Washington, District of Columbia, as a Centre

1—Auto mail wagon. 2—Distributing parcels. 3—Scales for weighing parcels. 4—Postmaster General Hitchcock with parcel. 5, 6 and 7—Carriers with parcels. 8—P. V. De Graw, assistant postmaster-general, in charge of parcel post. (Map shows "Zone" system, with Washington, D. C., as a center.)

Long enough to get the parcel post into working order, but not long enough yet to tell whether or not the system is going to be an unqualified success—such seems to be the general opinion of postmasters, express officials and the public concerning the United States parcel post system which went into effect on Jan. 1.

The principle of the system following the lines of the present post system for the United States was thought out, of course, before Congress authorized the postmaster-general of the United States to go into the express business. But there remain details of administration and of method which have not all been carried out yet. It takes time to devise and get into perfect running order a parcel post plan designed to handle the traffic between the entire width of a continent and takes in islands thousands of miles across the Pacific.

Some of the difficulties in the way of planning in advance all of the details of the system may be gained from consideration of the fact that the postmaster-general had to leave to the postmasters of the cities the provision of facilities for carrying the parcels. For example, in New York no one needed to ask the city how could anyone tell in advance to how great an extent the people of the big city would avail themselves of the new method of sending or receiving parcels? Would the big department store managers, always eager to seize upon anything to advance their business, lend their bundles to the postoffice stations, or deliver to purchasers instead of sending them by hand, their own wagons, as they have done in the past? These and a thousand other problems were "tackled" to the nation's postmasters for satisfactory solution.

to require the meter required more careful attention in New York, the biggest American metropolis, than elsewhere. Just before the system was inaugurated in the metropolis Postmaster Edward M. Morgan announced that he had arranged for the putting into service of ten new automobile mail delivery wagons and twenty-five new horse wagons and if the business done warranted if he was prepared to put into service an additional number of both sorts of vehicles. He said that at the expiration of fifteen days after the inauguration of the parcel post he would make a report to the postmaster general in Washington on his workings including such recommendations as experience would warrant.

By the time this is read Postmaster General Frank H. Hitchcock and Mr. Morgan know how the parcel post has affected the people of the big city and can judge from the report how it works. It should be understood that in New York and elsewhere the corporation does not own its own wagons and do its own trucking. That is all done by contract, and the parcel post, of course, called for new contracts with the owners and operators of the wag-

One of the first questions that occurred to everybody when the question

If a parcel post was brought in one that is still unsettled—that is, how will the parcel post affect the express companies? Twenty-five years ago or thereabout, when John Wanamaker, then postmaster-general, was asked why the United States had not a parcel post such as that of other countries, he replied that there were four reasons. Being asked to name them, he gave the names of four big express companies. But the President Benjamin Harrison's administration. Now the express companies, speaking through their high officials, say they do not fear the parcel post. They say the carrying of small parcels has always been a non-productive hindrance to their other business. "We are glad to have the government take the job off our hands," seems to be their general opinion.

Postmaster-General F. H. Hitchcock waxes enthusiastic in describing the advantages to accrue to the country through the establishment of the parcel post system.

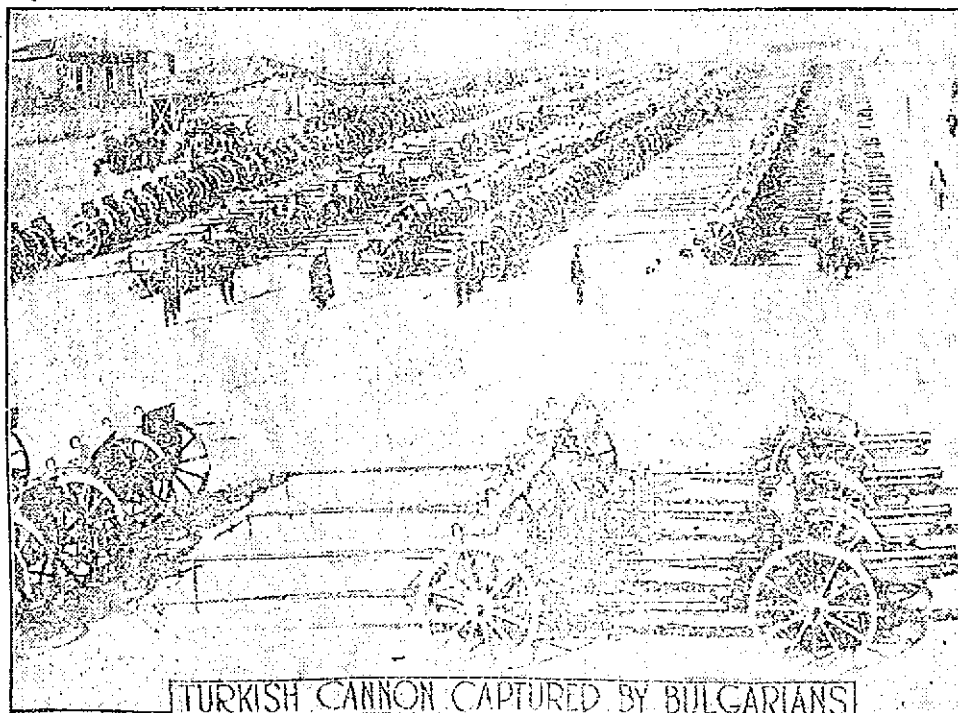

"Think of the benefits conferred on people living in remote sections not reached by the express companies," he said. "Every place in the country big enough to have a postoffice has the advantage of this service. We have a terminal after every place, no less than 2,000, where persons who do not have the advantage of express companies service are reached by the government in its capacity as an express carrier. Take the case of Silver City, N. M., for example. It is ninety miles from a railroad, but it has a postoffice, and parcel post packages are carried there."

"Another thing, the parcel post will reduce the cost of living in this country. It gives a better and cheaper means of transportation to places where prices are high on many articles because of the high charges for carrying them."

It is really a very ambitious undertaking, and the public should not, for a time at least, be too critical of its workings.

workings of the system, the limit of weight is eleven pounds, and the limit of size is seventy-two inches in added length, width and thickness. Later if the system proves a great success these limits will probably be extended. It is probably not necessary to tell the reader of the system of zones whereby parcels are classified and evaluated. The parcel post differs from the old fourth class (merchandise) classification of mail matter in that the limit of weight is increased from four pounds to eleven, and there is a graduated rate of payment in place of the old flat rate of one cent an ounce. Further your parcel is sent the more you have to pay.

HERE ARE SOME TURKISH CANNON THAT WILL BE USED BY BULGARIAN TROOPS

1 TURKISH CANNON CAPTURED BY BULGARIANS

LOZENGRAD, Turkey, Jan. 25.—This town, formerly called Kiriklisse, had its name changed when the Bulgarians captured it. Along with the town the victorious troops captured hundreds of pieces of artillery. Most of the guns are of a modern type and will prove invaluable to the allies when hostilities are resumed. The Turks had not much use out of the cannon owing to the lack of ammunition. The Bulgarians will not be handicapped in this way, and the capture of the cannon has therefore materially strengthened them.

Revenue Decreased
In substantiation of Mayor O'Donnell's statement to the effect that the city will be short about $6000 in its revenues this year, Charles D. Paige, city auditor, says: "It is true that more money should be raised by taxation in 1913 than in 1912, but there is a dropping off in other receipts that more than counterbalances the increase from tax money. The spending capacity of the city in 1912 was as follows: Taxes $569,798.17; department revenue, $470,300; total, $1,431,699.17. The revenue for the present year figure: $1,425,555.67; $293,789.22 for taxes and $442,136.45 for department revenues. These figures reduce the income for 1913 to the tune of $5113.50.

Street Dept. Busy
The street department is doing some

The street department is doing some repair work at the present time. One that seems to have been improperly applied in Andover street is being scraped off and three gangs, about as many as the city has, more than the sparrow gangs, so called, are doing general street cleaning. Commissioner Connelly, who has charge of streets and sewers, said yesterday that the city is not in very good shape and that he would put men to work on them within a few days. The New England Telephone & Telegraph company will begin the work of laying its conduits in Prescott street next Wednesday or Thursday. The Lowell Electric Light Corporation is also asked for a permit to lay its conduits in Prescott street and this company's petition will be heard at the meeting of the municipal council to be held this afternoon.

Y. M. C. A. MEMBERSHIP

Campaign for 2000 New Members Opened

The membership campaign of the Y. M. C. A. was formally opened last night by a well attended meeting of the members and committee at the new building of the association.

The secretary of the Y. M. C. A., W. C. A. work in Rhode Island as well as Massachusetts, Edward W. Heane, was present and delivered a very forceful address. He declared that Lowell was about to commence her most essential work and that work would be an un- qualified success if the young men would only put their shoulders to the wheel and push the good work along. This, he asserted, was the most im- portant feature to get the boys and young men interested.

With the battle cry of "2000 mem- bership" the meeting proved a very enthusiastic one. Especially was the part of Mr. Heane's address appre- ciated which compared the gifts of the rich to the efforts of the younger and poorer members in the Y. M. C. A. advancement. He said that although these gifts were always freely given and received with the greatest of ap- preciation the real progress in phys- ical, moral and mental development rested primarily with the young men themselves and for this reason they should be substantially co-operation was asked.

President F. A. Bowen, the presiding officer, called attention to the rules of the last campaign. The workers were divided into teams, each of which had a captain who reported the progress of his team at regular intervals. That scheme was adopted for the present campaign and the majority of the captains who served in the previous campaign were again named to serve in the new campaign.

Dr. Varnell, the secretary of the association, was of the opinion that the names of the different teams and their members were all on record, although not available at that time. He prom- ised to have everything relative to this important feature in shipshape form at an early date.

Dr. Varnell further suggested that names of expired membership be in- cluded under new memberships. After a short meeting of the members of the different teams present the secre- tary announced that each team must be paid with each membership and the balance within 30 days' time.

There was a motion to adjourn until next Thursday at 6:15 p. m. At this meet- ing the ladies of the Ladies' Auxiliary will serve the various committees with a regular course supper.

ESTATE PUT AT $250,000

Providence Property of Howard, Brockton Recluse, Nearly $100,000 Below His Request

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 28.—A meeting of the appraisers appointed by Judge Stone in the municipal court to ascer- tain the value of the estate left by Howard V. Howard, the recluse of Brockton, Mass., who died in this city on Jan. 11, was held yesterday afternoon to make a final effort to the presentation of their report.

It is believed the amount will not exceed $250,000, almost $100,000 below the amount Howard had bequeathed in his will. This includes only the property left in this city. It is claimed the greater portion of his wealth was here and that there is not $100,000 worth in Brockton or in any other place.

WALKER TO PROGRESSIVES

Tells Ward 19 Club He Has Long Fought For Policies and Principles of Their Party

BOSTON, Jan. 28.—Joseph Walker made his first appearance on the pro- gressive party platform last evening at a well attended meeting of the pro- gressive club of ward 19 at Roxbury Crossing.

James P. Magonis presided, and in introducing Mr. Walker, the chief speaker, said that Mr. Walker had un- doubtedly made the greatest personal sacrifice recorded in the political his- tory of Massachusetts during the past 25 years.

In his opening remarks Mr. Walker declared that it gave him great pleas- ure to address an audience of progres- sives. "I am pleased to be among those with whom I am in sympathy," he con- tinued. "At heart I have been a pro- gressive for many years and have long fought for the policies and principles of the progressive party with the hope that they might prevail within the re- publican party, but they have not."

FINDING FOR FATHER SHERIDAN IS CHAMPION

Daughter Had Sued Him Resumes Title by Disqualification of Thorpe for $10,000

BOSTON, Jan. 28.—Mrs. Annie M. Fox of 161 Charles street, Boston, yesterday lost her suit for $10,000 against her father, Frank Sheridan, of 71 Chatham street, Lynn. She sued for damages for assault and battery. The assault is alleged to have taken place at the Dalton home in Lynn on Christmas, 1911.

Mrs. Fox had been invited to spend the day with her father, and when she arrived she took him to task for not sending his automobile to Boston for her. He replied that the machine was out of order, and in the quarrel that followed he ejected her from the house. She broke windows in the garage, cellar and front door of the house with a jug, it was claimed.

She charged that her father choked, kicked and assaulted her. These charges the father denied, claiming that he used only the necessary force in ejecting her. The jury was out 59 minutes.

THE SUFFRAGETTES ENRAGED

At Withdrawal of Franchise Bill in British Parliament — They Say They Were Tricked

LONDON, Jan. 28.—England is on the brink of another campaign by the suffragettes, in comparison with which previous outbreaks of the militant women will appear insignificant.

Last night 2000 policemen were engaged in dispersing the huge crowds around the parliament buildings, shopkeepers were boarding up shop windows and excited women were making incendiary speeches in several halls.

The women believe that the politicians have played a carefully studied trick upon them, and the decision of the government to drop the franchise bill is likely to lead to serious consequences.

In the house of commons yesterday the speaker, Mr. Hon. James William Leith, in response to an inquiry by the prime minister, announced that if any of the amendments to the franchise bill giving the vote should be adopted, he would be obliged to rule that they made it substantially a new bill, which would compel its withdrawal.

Mr. Asquith thereupon announced that the cabinet had decided under such circumstances that it would be useless to proceed. This decision was taken in a crowded house, which displayed more interest in the subject than had been shown in the last stages of the home rule bill.

Suffragettes in a Rage

In the meantime police in great numbers, mounted and afoot, were having difficulties outside the building to keep the vast crowds in check, while reserve forces stationed on courtyards in the vicinity of parliament were held in readiness to check disorders of a more serious nature.

The suffragettes held heated meetings last night. Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst and other leaders denounced both the enemies and the supporters of the franchise bill in the cabinet for their treachery. They declared an end of the truce, which the women had observed while awaiting parliament's action on the bill, Mrs. Pankhurst declaring the women would demand human life safety, but would do as much damage to property as possible.

Some of her lieutenants failed to agree with her policy. Miss Annie Keary, one of the most prominent of the militants, advocated the smashing of both property and heads.

The executive committee of the national union of women's suffrage societies adopted a resolution rejecting Mr.

BORROW $13,000 FOR VAULTS

Order Adopted at Meeting of the Municipal Council—That Furniture Bill Again

The meeting of the municipal council was called to order at 8:10 o'clock this afternoon. In the absence of the mayor, who is confined to his home with a severe illness, Commissioner Barrett presided.

The first matter taken up was a petition from the Lowell Co-operative association to keep and store gasoline. The petition was granted.

To Borrow $13,000

An order for the borrowing of $13,000 for the construction of four steel vaults in the police station, the said money to be paid in 20 annual payments, was read. Commissioner Cummings said that for a number of years this has been advocated, especially since the fire at Chelsea, which destroyed all police records. He said if the vaults are not constructed the county commissioners will have the court records removed to the court house in Gorham street. He also stated that plans were drawn and adopted by those interested.

The commissioner then made a motion that the order be adopted.

Commissioner Brown asked Commissioner Cummings if he could not build these vaults with last year's appropriation to which Mr. Cummings replied that he had $150 left from last year. The order was adopted.

A petition of the Lowell Electric Light corporation to construct additional conduits in Merrimack street from Prescott street about 45 feet, was read. Commissioner Barrett stated that Prescott street will be torn up and later relaid by the street department, the L. E. Light Corp. and N. E. T. & Tel. Co. to bear expenses. The petition was referred to the commissioner of streets and highways with power to grant the petition.

The hearing on the communication of Adams & Co. on a bill for furniture purchased a year ago for the streets and highways department was held.

A representative of the company said that shortly after inauguration day in 1912 he was called by Commissioner Brown, who said he wanted furniture for his office that he had been ordered to do so by the municipal council. A carpet, draperies and shades and a roll top desk were purchased and the walls were decorated and all was charged to the street department. Everything was made up for that purpose. At this point Commissioner Brown asked several questions, such as "Did you speak to Mayor O'Donnell about this bill?" the reply being "no." He also asked if his company fitted the mayor's office while he (Brown) was mayor of the city, the reply being in the affirmative.

Questioned by Mr. Barrett as to the price of some furniture, Mr. Barrett said the couch cost $50, draperies for office $150, desk $55 and a roll top desk $58.

Mr. Cummings said he wants it understood that no one can come into this building and order furniture without his consent. Mr. Brown moved that the entire matter be referred to the city solicitor, Mr. Cummings seconded, provided the solicitor make a report next Tuesday, for he said the school board has asked him for the said room. Motion adopted.

Alexander Johnson petitioned the council for compensation for injuries received. Referred to commissioner of claims.

A motion that Dalton street be accepted was referred to proper commissioner.

A petition from Geo. McIntosh to keep and store gasoline and another from E. W. Clark were read and a hearing was set for Feb. 15.

Alexander Johnson was appointed surveyor of wood and bark.

Harry L. Poyer was appointed weigher of grain, etc. Warren T. Griffin was appointed measurer of wood.

A communication of the Merrimack Valley Waterway board relative to the development of the Merrimack river was read and referred to the mayor, city solicitor and commissioner of streets and highways.

MORE INSPECTORS

THE FINANCE COMMISSIONER CREATES NEW JOBS AT CITY HALL

Luke O'Connell Appointed to Inspect and Verify Checks of Street Department

Commissioner Brown is going to appoint inspectors for all departments at city hall. Their duties will consist of verifying and checking all supplies delivered for their respective departments and today he started by appointing Mr. Luke O'Connell inspector for the streets and highways department.

The latter will be attached to the purchasing agent's office, and will receive a salary of $16.50 per week.

Later on the commissioner will appoint an inspector for each department and in this way make sure that all goods ordered are received as purchased. The commissioner says he does not believe any crooked work has been done in the past, but this is to prevent it.

Mr. O'Connell, the new inspector, was formerly employed in the street department as blacksmith, but was recently dropped because work was slack.

No bills will be approved on the streets and highways unless the correctness of delivery is guaranteed by either Mr. O'Connell or some other representative of the purchasing agent's office.

Letter of Appointment

The following is a copy of the letter sent to Commissioner Donnelly by the commissioner of finance relative to the appointment:

Mr. James S. Donnelly, Commissioner of Streets and Highways, Lowell, Mass.

Dear Sir—You are hereby notified that I have appointed as a representative of the purchasing agent's office, Mr. Luke O'Connell, to verify and check all supplies delivered for the department of streets and highways.

You will notify the purchasing agent's department on the receipt of all goods of any description at city hall, street department office, or elsewhere; in order that Mr. O'Connell may check same and also that the department of finance may be satisfied as to correctness of delivery.

Yours very truly,

George H. Brown, Commissioner of Finance.

Commissioner Donnelly when seen later denied discharging Mr. O'Connell, but said he laid him off the following Tuesday after inauguration on account of being short of money. He further stated that the civil service commission may have something to say relative to the appointment, for he believes an examination was held some time ago for this same position, and that the commission has a list of names of people eligible for the position. When asked if Mr. O'Connell had taken the examination, he said he did not believe he did, but could not say for sure.

JERRY O'DWYER WAS NOT KILLED

As Supposed by His Lowell Friends in a Battle in the Philippines

Mr. Jerry O'Dwyer, a conductor on the Broadway car line, has been in a very serious state of mind since yesterday when he heard of the death of a number of the members of Troop F, 5th U. S. Cavalry, in the Philippines. His boy, Jeremiah T. O'Dwyer, is a member of that troop and, as the names of those who were killed were not given in the press despatches, Mr. O'Dwyer was fearful lest his son was among the victims.

The Sun today wired the navy department at Washington for information upon this matter and has received the following reply:

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25, 1913.

Editor Sun, Lowell, Mass.—The war department has no information that Jeremiah T. O'Dwyer of Troop F, 5th Cavalry, was killed or wounded. The name is not in the list of soldiers killed and wounded in the Philippine Islands on the 26th inst.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 25.—The explosion of two casting furnaces at the plant of the Upton Nut Co. this afternoon seriously injured 29 or 30 men, some of whom may die, blew out window panes in a radius of half a mile and made it necessary to summon the entire fire department.

800 STRIKING WAITERS STONED

Men Who Quit at Strike Call Want to Return to Work—Wives and Children Starving

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Eight hundred striking waiters and hotel workers were stoned while meeting today by a score or more of their own men who quit work on the strike call several days ago and could not get their jobs back when the backbone of the movement was broken. The windows of the hall were shattered and the gathering broke up in disorder. Later the meeting was resumed. The stonings came from an elevated railroad station opposite the hall and the men who cast them boarded a train and made their escape. From the rear platform of the last car, as the train moved away, they shouted back their grievances.

"Our wives and children are starving," they said. "We want work; we want food."

Two More Arrested

LONDON, Jan. 25.—A band of militant suffragettes bombarded the windows of the home office in Whitehall with stones late this evening. Two women were arrested for participating in the attack.

BROKE WINDOWS IN DUBLIN CASTLE

Suffragettes Create Excitement—3 Arrested and Sentenced to Month at Hard Labor

LONDON, Jan. 25.—The suffragettes have lost no time in opening their militant campaign. According to a despatch from Dublin they made a concerted attack at noon today on the windows of Dublin castle, a number of which they smashed. Three suffragettes were arrested.

In London, too, the suffragettes are displaying great vigor. General Mrs. Drummond sent an ultimatum today to David Lloyd George, chancellor of the exchequer, when he refused at her request to receive a deputation of women on the ground that he had other engagements. She wrote:

"I and other members of the delegations intend to wait on you in the house of commons at 8 o'clock this evening. We trust you will make the necessary arrangements to receive us."

Suffragettes Sentenced

DUBLIN, Jan. 25.—Three suffragettes, Mrs. Hopkins, Mrs. Cousins, and Mrs. Conery, who were arrested this morning on the charge of breaking 15 panes of glass in the windows of Dublin castle were sentenced by the magistrates this morning to a month's hard labor each.

The allies are, it is believed, still hoping that something will turn up to avert rupture of the peace negotiations.

SCHEMES TO MISLEAD THE PUBLIC

Sulzer Says Time is Ripe to End Abuses—Recommends Laws to Reform Stock Boards

ALBANY, Jan. 28.—State supervision and regulation of the New York stock exchange and other stock exchanges are advocated by Gov. Sulzer in a message sent by him to the legislature last night.

The time is ripe, in the governor's opinion, for the state to step in and end rampant abuses, shifty schemes and other conditions which are the unwary and to mislead the public.

To effect this he recommends the enactment of a group of laws at least one of which shall provide imprisonment as a penalty for its violation. These laws, the governor says, should apply to certain practices shown to exist by the Pugh committee of congress and other investigators.

"The testimony of some governors of the exchanges," Gov. Sulzer says, "leaves no doubt in the mind of men of judgment that the exchanges have been either incapable or unwilling to devise measures that will effectively eradicate the evils. It is now the obvious duty of the state, it seems to me, to devise the remedies."

Some of the Measures

Among the measures which Gov. Sulzer would have enacted into law are:

A law to distinguish clearly, proper transactions of purchase and sale from those that are the result of manipulations to raise or depress artificially the price of securities, without regard to their true value or legitimate supply and demand.

A law to prohibit brokers from selling backward and forward among themselves. Blocks of a particular stock, with intent to deceive or mislead outsiders.

A law to prohibit brokers from selling for their own account, the same stocks they have been ordered to buy for their customers at the time the customers' orders are executed.

A law clearly prohibiting insolvent brokers from continuing to buy and sell after they become insolvent.

A law making it a criminal offense to issue any statement or publish any advertisement as to the value of any stock or other security, or as to the financial condition of any corporation or company issuing or about to issue stock or securities, which is untrue or calculated to mislead or to be false or to be not fairly justified by existing conditions.

Gov. Sulzer also recommends changes in existing laws and the enactment of new laws governing short sales, the hypothecation of securi-

Cured her boy's eczema

"We cured our little son of eczema with Resinol. His legs were as raw as could be. It began with just little pimples. He could not rest or sleep, the itching was so bad. We tried every remedy we could think of but they did not seem to do him any good. After he suffered like that for about three months, we then began to wash him with Resinol Soap, and then used Resinol Ointment. They cured him in about two weeks, and he has never had any symptoms of eczema again."

Unfair Discrimination

"Complaint has been made that the restrictions placed by certain exchanges on the right of their members to act for the members of other exchanges, or to belong to such exchanges, result in unfair discrimination and injustice.

"The existing rules and practices in this regard should be carefully considered, and if these rules, in fact, or in their actual operation, result in injustice, or in the curtailment of honest business, or in harm to the general investing public, then I recommend such remedial legislation as the facts require.

"It has been urged that the law be amended so as to require the incorporation of these stock exchanges, to the end that the authority of the state is over the transactions upon these exchanges and the acts of their governing bodies may be directly invoked.

"Whether, if appropriate legislation, shall be framed and enacted into law, the public will be adequately protected without the incorporation of these exchanges, is a question which I submit for your serious consideration.

Urged to go Slowly

"Let us go slow and not act hastily. Hasty legislation in regard to the purchase and sale of stocks and bonds might result in serious harm to the financial supremacy of the state; have a tendency to drive capital away from New York, and might discourage the large operations of legitimate business now entered in this state to the detriment of its citizens and the commonwealth generally.

"Great care should be taken, therefore, in the consideration and enactment of laws which, if wisely drawn, will protect the investing public, promote publicity, safeguard the rights of the people, restore confidence and facilitate our business prosperity; but which, if inconsiderately enacted, may result in a serious disorganization of general business."

ESCAPED MEN ARE CAUGHT

Joseph Fitzpatrick and Charles L. Clifford Get Out of the Concord Reformatory

CONCORD, Mass., Jan. 28.—Joseph Fitzpatrick, 19 years old, of Charlestown, and Charles L. Clifford of Roxbury, two five-year term men at the reformatory, sealed the wall of the prison yesterday morning and made a dash for liberty, only to be retaken at a clock house on the North Acton railroad station. They have been at the prison only a short time. Fitzpatrick was sentenced for robbery and Clifford for breaking and entering.

At 5 o'clock yesterday morning they got permission to go from the shop to the hospital and were missed soon after. A line of rubber hose was found hanging over the wall by means of which they lowered themselves down on the outside.

Immediately after the discovery of their escape the police of all the surrounding towns were warned by telephone and prison officers started out in automobiles and carriages to find the young men. Late last evening a woman telephoned to the prison that she had seen the two men running along the railroad tracks toward North Acton.

Chief C. Thompson and Herbert C. Shepard started after them at top speed. When they reached the North Acton railroad station they found the two prisoners dressed in their prison uniforms seated inside the depot waiting for a train.

They were arrested without a struggle and brought back to the reformatory and placed in solitary cells. The responsibility for their escape has not yet been placed. Fitzpatrick, with four others, was sentenced by Judge Brown, after conviction of robbing Thomas Brown, 65 years old, of Atlantic avenue. They beat the old man terribly and robbed him of 55 cents.

James Moran, the driver of the wagon, reported the accident to the police, but he was not detained, as the police stated that he was not to blame.

FULL PARDON NOT ASKED

King's Son Had Conference With Foss

GOVERNOR FAVORS FREEDOM WITH CERTAIN RESTRICTIONS

Pardon Will Be Taken Up By Executive Council Pardon Committee Tomorrow

BOSTON, Jan. 28.—When the executive council meets tomorrow, the pardon committee will consider the petition of Cardenio P. King asking for executive clemency, and if the suggestion of Gov. Foss is favorably acted upon the former stock broker will be granted a quasi-parole, or freedom under certain restrictions and conditions.

King, who is confined at the state farm at Bridgewater, has long been in ill health. Yesterday the prisoner's son visited the state house and had a long conference with the governor, at the conclusion of which Gov. Foss sent the following communication to Lieut. Gov. Walsh, chairman of the Pardon committee of the executive council:

"Jan. 27, 1913.

"Hon. David I. Walsh, Chairman Pardon Committee of the Council, State House, Boston, Mass.

"My Dear Sir—I transmit herewith for the attention of your committee a petition for a pardon on behalf of Cardenio P. King, accompanied by numerous letters and papers in relation thereto.

"I have been advised that Mr. King's physical condition is such that continuing detention in prison will seriously endanger his life, and I have been advised by the attorney general that under these conditions it is competent for the governor and council to grant a pardon with the condition that the prisoner be allowed to remain under the supervision of some designated physician and shall be recommended to serve the remainder of his sentence when and if such physician shall certify that his health is so far recovered that he is no longer unduly hazardous.

"I am impressed with the justice of these recommendations and with the opinion of the attorney general, which I also transmit.

"I therefore submit the petition to you for your consideration, and if you find that it merits executive clemency, I will be favorable to a pardon on the terms indicated above. Yours very truly, Eugene N. Foss."

TERM IN STATE PRISON

Hosford's Plea Fails—Charged With Larceny

BOSTON, Jan. 28.—Edward H. Hosford, aged 35, former superintendent of the Sunday school of the First Congregational church, Malden, treasurer of the Donovan Silliper Company, and other religious work, was sentenced to state prison for a term of four to seven years for larceny by Judge Brown in the superior court yesterday.

He was indicted under an indictment containing 31 counts for larceny of various sums, aggregating $12,029.91. The sentence was on two counts. Other counts not enumerated brought the number to 36 and valued at about $87,000. He obtained the money from Frank E. Paige & Co., of Essex street by means of forged bills of lading on which Paige loaned 15 percent of their face value.

Prominent business men testified to his reputation and the good work he had done. They knew him as superintendent of the Sunday school for 10 to 15 years.

DOG STRANGLED TO DEATH

Cellar Caught on Crank Handle of Auto in Fitchburg Which Carried Him Mile From Place

FITCHBURG, Jan. 28.—A valuable Scotch collie, for whose owner the police are looking, ran directly in front of an auto driven by W. Sterlin near the corner of Circle and Main streets. Men who saw the dog run in front of the machine went into the street, but they did not find it. The driver of the car had no knowledge of the accident until he stopped his car about a mile from the scene.

He was surprised to find the dead body of the dog hanging from the crank shaft handle by its collar. It is supposed that in trying to escape from being run down, his collar caught on the swinging crank handle and he was strangled to death.

WHY DELAY?

THE ALGONQUIN CLUB

Members Saw Burning of Mortgage

BOSTON, Jan. 28.—About 300 members of the Algonquin Club dined at the clubhouse last night and witnessed the ceremony of burning the $45,000 mortgage, which was the last and only debt of the club. The Algonquin Club was organized in 1878, and started out with an indebtedness of about $160,000. This was gradually reduced until a mortgage of $45,000 was left.

About a month ago it was proposed to elect 45 life members at $100 each to clear up the mortgage. At the dinner last night the bylaw limiting the number to 45 was adopted, and 45 members had already signed, their intention to become life members, so that the list was complete.

A large part of the credit for the success of the 15 years is due to the late Col. William M. Eunting, an old member of the club, who died about a year ago. He was appointed chairman of the house committee and through his business like methods and active work he showed great progress in diminishing the debt. He was followed successfully in office by Col. Harry E. Russell, Hon. Joshua H. Holden and Gen. Edgar P. Champlin, who now holds that office. Mr. Joseph A. Goodspeed has been a member of the house committee during the entire 15 years and has done fine service as the official accountant of the club. Mr. Alexander Nixon, the superintendent of the club, has also contributed largely to its success by his able management.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

Lowell Opera House

If you are at all interested in animals that have their own "call of the wild," and if you are a lover of nature, don't miss the Rainey pictures at the Opera House this week. They are distinct novelties and they possess, as has been very truly said, a wonderful educational value.

One of the most extraordinary pictures shown on canvas is that of the dreaded striped hyena dragging the trap that holds him captive. To the East African the striped hyena looms up as the tomb-stone of his fathers and a dead hyena looks good to the native.

The natives will not eat the hyena because it lives on human beings and the hyena had dragged his trap several feet when discovered by some of the hunters. One could discern the breathing motion of the animal and though wild and ferocious he looked back at the trap with a look of resignation. Power in his hateful, snarling face. Pretty soon he realized that something strange surrounded him and then he indulged in vicious breaks for freedom. The trap, however, was sure of its prisoner and his relentless jaws along with bulldog tenacity to the death emblem of the African, the striped hyena.

Paul J. Rainey's African hunt pictures should not be missed by man, woman or child in Lowell. Animals of British East Africa are shown in their native haunts and all of the pictures are intensely interesting.

The man who tells you all about the pictures is Dr. Louis Freese and he tells the story, not as a lecturer, but as any good story-teller would tell it. Go to the Opera House and see the gazelle, the eland, the oryx, the kudu, the cheetah, the rhinoceros and other wild animals, some of which are almost unheard of in this western world. The Opera House was filled last night and the audience was a large and distinctly representative one.

Views of the celebrated Tarleton farm were given. Mr. Tarleton is a hunter who catches wild animals for zoological gardens. He has there many breeds which are rapidly becoming extinct, among them the eland, kudu, bush bucks and langool were shown.

An ostrich farm with the big birds being herded in the arena was very interesting. The ostrich was pictured in the picture, it being given by a male member of the family. This wiggled all turkey, trots and bunnies huggs beaten to a frazzle. This same ostrich was shown at a later date, chasing a native boy. The boy had a hard time keeping the bird away, which finally had to be lassoed and his head securely bound before he was subdued.

The Mississippi hounds were brought into play in the next picture. It was a genuine leopard or cheetah hunt. The famous dogs, Hook and Reel, which had been trained to climb trees and which would fight their weight in wild cats, actually tamed a big cheetah and drove him from the topmost branches to the ground, where he was devoured. The cheetah fought in rough-and-tumble fashion, only eventually to be bitten to pieces. Some 40 dogs showed in this scene, but the actual fighting was carried on by a half dozen Mississippi hounds.

After intermission there was shown a view of the danga, or water hole, a dried up river bed, to which hundreds of different kinds of mammals make their way during the morning hours. Photographer Hemmer, the official photographer of the expedition, was forced to remain here 72 hours at a stretch in order to get the motion pictures shown. He was ensconced in the branches of a tree and was liable many times to serious injury.

Rhinos, hippos and rhinoceroses were first shown running down to the water holes for their morning drink. Later two rhinoceroses battled royally for precedence at the water hole. About this time there appeared on the sky, line a long, mottled neck. It was a reticulated giraffe, one of the more rare varieties, and he was not accompanied by his mate. The giraffe plainly showed the effects of the camera clicking, appearing shy and eventually much disturbed. Having come many miles, however, he agreed to drink, but only after his mate arrived. The smaller animals scampered as the larger ones hove into view. Wart hogs and zebras then had a turn at the spring, and finally an umbrella-eared elephant family went to the danga. This family consisted of father, mother, half grown daughter and baby daughter.

The final two sections of the entertainment consisted of a rhinoceros hunt, one of the most dangerous of sports, and the trailing of the dog by the hounds. In this latter picture the fighting Mississippi hounds were shown at their best, actually putting the king of beasts to bay.

MADAME SCHUMANN-HEINK

Madame Schumann-Heink's appearance everywhere this season have all been great successes and the interest shown in her appearances here on Feb. 7th at the Opera House is of an unusual character. Madame Schumann-Heink's time is taken up for the entire season and she will secure but little rest excepting at the Christmas season which she always spends with her children.

Speaking of her children and the holiday season, Mme. Schumann-Heink says: "There is no money in the world that would keep me from my children at that time. What is money to me compared with the pleasure of being with my family? I always make it a point to be with my family at that time."

The diva tells the truth. She gets so homesick at times for her children that she travels hundreds of miles to be with them a short while. Two years ago when touring America she made one jump of over a thousand miles in order to see her children for a period of but a few hours.

Keith's Theatre

Hardeen was the star attraction at Keith's yesterday, and judging from the difficult feats he performed, there will be a good audience to see him during the remainder of the week.

He is an athletic looking young man, not the thin, wiry chap one would expect could squeeze out of a pair of handcuffs. He doesn't slip out of them; he opens them, and not only one pair, but seven pairs, not to mention a stout leg iron which was thrown in for good measure, by the committee of local policemen who undertook the job of harnessing up Hardeen.

Sergeant Carney, of the United States recruiting station, is out to get Hardeen's goat. He wasn't satisfied with the headlock trick and he thought the young man show what he could do, in the line of freeing himself from a punishment iron, such as was used during the Civil war, and which was guaranteed to keep the most active man quiet for a considerable length of time.

It took Hardeen just three minutes to get out of it. Sergeant Carney, still dissatisfied, has offered to bring around an array restraint cot, from which nobody has ever been able to escape, without assistance. Hardeen is going to try it, and is confident that he will succeed.

The most spectacular part of his performance was his escape from a milk can filled with water, and secured with six padlocks. In 35 seconds, Hardeen was out of the can, and he proved conclusively to the audience that he had not disturbed the padlocks, neither had he spilled or let out the water. The audience was enthusiastic over his wonderful exhibition.

Hardeen's tricks are all done behind a canopy, and the audience can only see him before and after he performs each stunt. Of course, that only makes his act more mysterious, but it arouses an insatiable curiosity in the public, and also, as long as the actor is concealed while he does his tricks, there will be suspicions. Magicians never hide behind curtains—why can't Hardeen let us watch him, at the time he is on the stage?

Officer Sullivan who assisted last evening, says Hardeen is a wonder. He has arranged many other thrilling stunts for the various performances of this week and everyone should make an opportunity to see him.

The other vaudeville features at Keith's are exceptionally good. A lively, dramatic playlet, "The Finish," is presented by four clever actors, with Florence Lorraine in the leading role, as the Swedish scrub woman. Miss Lorraine received a cordial welcome last evening, and was generously applauded for her fine work in a very difficult part. She is well known as an actress of surprising capabilities, and deserves great praise for her work in this new sketch. The supporting company is all that could be desired, and the piece as a whole, is most enjoyable.

The Farber sisters are sure to please in their singing and dancing act, and Mabel Howard is a charming and excellent little entertainer. There is something doing every minute. The Georgia Trio are on the stage, while Charles Weber, comedy juggler is highly amusing. Hallen and Hayes, comedians, and Farro, shadowgraphist, complete a first-class bill.

Performances are scheduled for every afternoon and evening during the week, and good seats may be obtained at the box office.

that has been offered in this theatre for some time. Next week the Temple Players are scheduled to return, and will no doubt receive a hearty welcome back to Lowell.

Yesterday's performance opened with two very amusing photo-plays, "After the Honeymoon" and "An Absent-minded Burglar." Then there were pictures shown by the American Press association, of important doings in the world's history today.

A one-act play, "The Preacher and the Man," was presented by Charles Terris & Co., with Mr. Terris in the leading role of "Father Anthony," assisted by Lily Crist, as his niece, and Nye V. Melshaw, who took the part of the outspoken liquor dealer, "Hank Scott." The various characters are somewhat overdrawn in their attempt to be realistic, especially that of the priest, who makes certain statements that might be misconstrued when coming from the mouth of a clergyman. However, the play as a whole is effective and has a good dramatic climax.

The Heidelberg Four, who are new on the program, are a jolly company of first class singers. They had a varied repertoire, including the beautiful ballad, "Till the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold," the rollicking and over popular tune from the "Follies," "Row, Row, Row," and many others, chiefly of a gay nature. It is always a pleasure to hear good singers, and the Heidelberg Four cannot fail to please.

By this time, no doubt, everyone has heard about Frank Bush and his funny stories. His jokes are the kind that are easily remembered, and yesterday's audiences have advertised him well by repeating almost every word he said, so that during the remainder of the week Frank will have to go the limit of his 1000 stories, if he wishes to hold the undivided attention of his listeners, as he did Monday. In the twinkling of an eye, and with no change of costume, except the addition of a pair of spectacles and a poke at his hair, he can transform himself into an entirely different character—pose, walk, expression, gestures and dialect—with everything true to life, no matter whether he is imitating an Irishman, an Englishman, a Hebrew or a negro. One of his cleverest impersonations was that of a Boston young lady returning on the last boat from Nantucket Saturday night, in the deplorable condition of being "soused" and eager and ready to tell all her troubles to the world in general, and anyone in particular. Bush's stories are all short, snappy and original. He is one of the few men on the vaudeville stage who can lay claim to being really funny, and no one should miss his act in Lowell this week.

Another act on the program that is bound to please is Woodford's, with Occar, the monkey in the leading role. He smokes the pipe, engages in a boxing match with the trainer, and performs a number of other stunts that are really remarkable. The other "characters" in the act are seen to excellent advantage.

Concluding the performance are two motion pictures, "Kings of the Forest" and "The Old Broken Bucket." The former is a two reel affair, with the scene laid in the jungle, and contains some fine views of a lion, a lioness and her cubs.

Performances every day from 1.30 to 10.30 o'clock.

The Playhouse

It was deemed best by the management of the Playhouse to treat patrons to a rich comedy during the present week and as a result of this decision a good sized audience was delighted at the presentation of the three act comedy "Facing the Music." The manner in which the Drama Players presented this sparkling piece was most pleasing and if the production is duly appreciated, the theatre will be crowded at the remaining performances.

"Facing the Music" is replete with good wholesome fun and laughable situations. These latter are given rise to from the appearance of two Mrs. Smiths at the home of one of the Mr. Smiths and the plot is fast moving and exceedingly clever of construction, moreover it is not so far fetched as to be absurdly incongruous. The presentation last night. The Drama Players scored a big success, and it was a fine tribute to the skill of Mr. Kendall Weston in making the variety of selections which have pleased the friends of the Drama Players. It was an added proof that these well known actors are equally capable in light comedy and in the more serious drama, an accomplishment which few companies of the kind can boast.

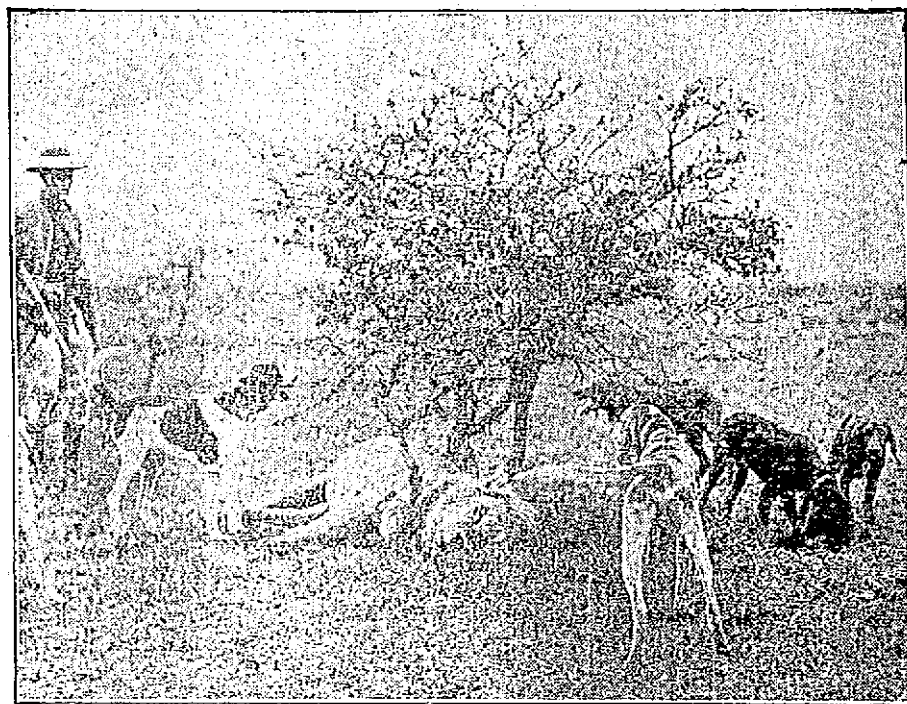

Patrons of the attractive theatre are high in their praise of the scenic arrangements which are beautiful features of all the plays and this was the same from the very beginning. The high standard of taste shown in the arrangement of the stage for the various scenes has been held throughout and lends a distinction to the Playhouse. For a time, the lack of sufficient room on the stage was the cause of some delay in the change of the scenery and a rather long interval between the acts was the result. Patrons, however, were patient and did not complain and in spite of the disadvantage, Mr. Weston has made such changes that this delay is now a thing of the past and the time of waiting between the acts of the plays has been greatly diminished.

Mr. Isaac Dillon, one of the most popular members of the company, is given in a leading part this week, that of John Smith, whose misfortune gains for a time the ill favor of his wife. The natural way in which Mr. Dillon has always portrayed any character is even more than ever pleasing in "Facing the Music" and he was accorded a hearty reception by the audience last night. As "Mrs. Smith," Mrs. Constance Jackson has a difficult part which she handles remarkably well. After a short absence and finds another Mrs. Smith there which is the result of a series of extremely funny predicaments. Howard Sawyer in the character of Colonel Juncosmith, who holds his reputation as the clever comedian of the company, Mrs. Alfa Perry Myers has won numerous friends from the clever manner in which she has portrayed different characters in past productions and as "Mrs. Ponting" this week she furnishes a good share of the fun. Miss Grace Young is seen in the part of another Mrs. Smith, the wife of the "Rev. John Smith," who unfortunately mistakes another's apartment for his own and takes possession. To Harold Collins' lot falls the part of Mr. Smith of the clergy and the clever young actor proved himself equal to the difficult task. Thomas Carroll as "Sergeant Buffell," of the police and Orrin Shear as "Dick Deed" finished the "Ma's Apron Strings" are other features.

Theatre Voyons
The feature at the Theatre Voyons tonight is "Which is the Savage?" a real novelty made by the Lubin company in Arizona and with a cast composed entirely of women. One of the incidents is the plunge of an auto over a high cliff and the miraculous escape of its two occupants. "The Tender Hearted Lady," "Ma's Apron Strings" are other features.

There were thirty delegates present and all took a deep interest in the matter. Those present were: From Tyngsboro—Dr. H. M. Larrabee, Henry M. Billings, Arthur A. Foster. From Westford—Senator Edward Fisher, Edward M. Abbott, Alex. McDonald. From Tyngsboro—Warren A. Sherburne, J. G. Queen, Otis L. Wright. From Chelmsford—D. Frank Small, David Higgins, John J. Maahan, Walter Perkins. From Dracut—George H. Stevens, Walter F. Garland, Jesse J. Prescott, F. D. Bryant. From Billerica—H. H. Essex, Representative Charles H. Williams. From Dunstable—William P. Proctor, Arthur X. Hall, Frank H. Sargent, William H. Curdin. From Lowell—President George M. Harrigan of the board of trade, Clarence H. Nelson, Secretary John H. Murphy, Robert F. Marden, Commissioner of Streets James E. Donnelly, Superintendent of Streets Newell F. Putnam, City Clerk Engineer Stephen Kearney.

At the conclusion of the report President George M. Harrigan of the Lowell board of trade called to order and in a few words explained the purpose of the gathering. He then called upon Robert F. Marden to take charge of the meeting and suggested that he

Newest Feature in Spring Waists and Blouses is the Sleeve Hold Running Into the Yoke—Other Models

The new feature of the spring waists and blouses is that of the sleeve hold running into the yoke, which disposition of material usually forms a round yoke. This is a youthful cut that is appreciated alike by the young girl and the up to the minute matron. Indeed, the tendency of the styles for the spring season is to have them young looking. Blouses are apparently made for young girls since there is little about them that smacks of dignity. They are charming, original and chic, but they are not serious.

A delightful blouse seen recently at an advanced display of clothes was of patty colored drap de satin trimmed with lightly embroidered in the exact shade of the pretty satin.

This blouse has a modish color suggestion like everything else in dress, but the graceful draping of the satin makes the color stunning. Putting the white touch with the patty tone was a judicious idea, and in the juxtaposition the white shines out wonderfully soft and pure.

The smartest of the new blouses suggest transparency, though they are really opaque. The effect is achieved by mounting one shade of chiffon over the other and putting net under it. One of the waists illustrated is carried out in the lace model pictured, the difficulty being overcome by mounting the fabric over fine net. This blouse has turned back cuffs and revers of white satin and an effective jabot of contrasting lace.

Do you like the lingerie waist illustrated? It is an exceedingly good thing in fine white batiste, with tucking, valenciennes lace and very open embroidery banding. The sleeves, as you see, are long, a rather uncomfortable feature in summer time. All waists of sleeves are seen on the latest waists, but the three-quarter length is the least graceful, and either the long, narrow lightly in the popular shade of patty dahlia. The finish on the corsage was of white crepe de chine, with crystal buttons. The emplacement of the blouse in this way by mounting blue and cream chiffon and shadow lace over each other.

Anything like a stiff effect is avoided effect or the very short sleeve in the better selection.

For house waists the blouse neck finish to be worn by the fashionable woman will be low, in round or square cut, but on the street she will appear quite different with her high guimpe of tulle or lace. Unless one has a very short and fleshy neck the collarless finish is apt to look undressed and scant. True, it is "grand chic" to have a long, scrawny neck and to wear one's dresses as low about the throat as possible, but such effects, while quite modish, are far from pretty. Cut a certain distance, the low décolletage looks well, but just to stifle that happy medium—there's the rub.

We see women with very high guimpes, and we see women with blouses and corsages cut below the collarbone. So both are fashionable. But the woman who values her health will not expose her throat in cold weather, having made it sensitive for many years by cooling it in choking collars.

In the new "Volcan" girdle we see what influence the political situation has on fashion. These girdles are high waisted corsets of tapestry and embroidery, worn by Serbian, Bulgarian and Montenegrin peasants. A sash of this kind worn with a plain little frock gives an air of remarkable smartness.

PAINTED AND DROWNED

Boat Drifted Ashore in Buzzard's Bay With Walter Stevens' Head Dragging in the Water

BUZZARDS BAY, Jan. 28.—Walter Stevens, aged 34, son of Charles E. Stevens, who has charge of the Buzzard's Bay end of the construction of the Cape Cod canal, was drowned here yesterday. The young man was subject to fainting spells and was overcome by one when returning in a rowboat from a dredge at work in the canal.

He fell on the gunwale of the boat with his head in the water, and in this manner the boat drifted ashore with his body. He had been dead some time when found.

Perham of Chelmsford, Edward M. Abbott of Westford and Robert F. Marden of Lowell. The committee after a few minutes reported that the towns and the city should each be represented by five delegates duly chosen, and that the officers should consist of a chairman, a secretary-treasurer and an executive committee of three, one from each town and city, and the secretary ex-officio. The chairman should be elected by the number from each town.

The next step was the election of officers. The result was as follows: Robert F. Marden, Lowell, chairman; Walter F. Garland, Dracut, secretary-treasurer; Dr. H. M. Larrabee, Tewksbury, executive committee; Edward M. Abbott, Westford; William P. Proctor, Dunstable; Stephen Kearney, Lowell; Charles H. Nelson, Chelmsford; George H. Stevens, Dracut; and yet unnamed. Robert F. Marden was elected the secretary-treasurer, Walter Perkins of Chelmsford.

While the committee framed its plans of organization the gathering was addressed by Jesse J. Prescott of Dracut and Superintendent Newell F. Putnam of Lowell.

The council, which is an organization by itself, adjourned to Saturday afternoon, Feb. 8, at the board of trade rooms in Lowell at 4 o'clock. Senator Fisher was appointed a delegate to arrange with the state highway commission to provide a speaker for the first general meeting of the council to be held at some date to be announced, and it is the opinion that Col. W. D. Sobler, chairman of the commission, will agree to be the first guest of the council.

MISTAKE IN LAND DEAL

Ordered Investigated by Texas Legislature

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 28.—An investigation of the report that through mistake or fraud Texas decided four million acres of land to a Chicago syndicate which erected the state capital instead of the 3,000,000 acres provided for in the contract was ordered by the lower house of the Texas legislature last night.

The resolution recites that in the section of the state where the land is located it is currently reported and believed that the syndicate received one million acres more than was intended and the state land commissioner is asked to furnish data for further investigation if necessary.

The state capital was erected by a syndicate known as the Capital syndicate and also as the Farwell syndicate. Approximately 3,000,000 acres of land was deeded to the syndicate in 1876 in consideration for the erection of the present capitol building. The land was appraised at 50 cents per acre but now is worth from $2 to $20 per acre. It is located in the plains country of the Panhandle.

How to Be Well.

By Dr. True
Your stomach and bowels are the largest organs in your body. And the easiest part of you to be abused. You eat all kinds of different foods, you don't chew enough, you bolt your food too fast. Then you neglect your bowels. Consequence is you get a stomach full of sour, half-digested food and the bowels choked full of filthy waste matter, giving poisons off into the blood and body. Is it any wonder you feel badly?

In my practice I found so many people whose sickness came from bad stomach and bowels that I had a prescription put up and waiting for them. This prescription became famous as a health giver, so I put it up, naming it Dr. True's Elixir, and you can buy it most everywhere. All druggists and dealers in medicine sell it for 35c, 50c and $1.00. I know a lot of doctors and druggists who use it in their own families, so you see what they think of it! Just remember the name, Dr. True's Elixir. It brings health to men, women and children.

MESSAGE FROM ROYALTY

Wilson Greeted by King of Spain

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 28.—President-elect Wilson yesterday received personal greetings from the king of Spain through the Marquis de la Vega Inclan, the royal commissioner delegated to select a site for the Spanish exhibit at the Panama exposition at San Francisco. It was the first message Mr. Wilson has received from a European ruler. The president-elect inquired if it were true that King Alfonso would visit the United States soon, and learned that the laws and customs of Spain made it practically impossible for his monarch to leave the country for any length of time.

Judge Meek of Texas Criticizes Atty-General Wickersham For Interfering in Case of Archibald and Others
DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 28.—Atty-Gen. D. Archibald, H. C. Koger, Jr., and W. C. Tuggle, indicted in Judge Meek's court on charges of violating the Sherman anti-trust law in alleged operations affecting the Magnolia Petroleum company.

Powerless to Stop Floods
WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Army engineers concluded today that they are practically powerless to contend with the great Beaulieu crevasses in the Mississippi river levee system near Greenville, Miss. They can "tie" the ends of the broken levee by driving piling deep into the soft soil and filling in with rock and brush so as to prevent further erosion of the levee, but it is believed to be quite impossible to make the levee before next summer. Meantime, according to Gen. Bixby, chief of engineers, who is personally familiar with the Yazoo country, no less than 1000 square miles of good cotton and corn land probably will be under water until April at least.

LITTLE JOHNNIE CLEM THE LAST CIVIL WAR VETERAN ON ACTIVE LIST

COLONEL JOHN L. CLEM, UNITED STATES ARMY

The Lowell Grand Army men who served in the Civil war, many of them in the battle of Gettysburg, will be interested in the story of John L. Clem, now the only Civil war veteran on the active list of the regular army of the United States. Johnnie has an interesting history as the drummer boy of Chickamauga. Of course John L. Clem is no longer "Little Johnny" Clem. That is scarcely a fitting designation for a man who holds so high a distinction as a colonel in the United States army. But it is greatly to be feared that he will live in history as "Little Johnny" Clem, the drummer boy of Chickamauga, rather than as Colonel or General John L. Clem, the very last veteran of the Civil war to perform active service in the United States army.

THE LOWELL SUN

JOHN H. HARRINGTON, Proprietor
SUN BUILDING, MERRIMACK SQUARE, LOWELL, MASS.
Member of the Associated Press
THREE DOLLARS PER YEAR TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER MONTH

OUR FIRE LOSSES

According to the New York Journal of Commerce, the fire losses of the United States for the year ending December 31, 1912, amounted to $225,330,000. This is about nine million dollars less than the total loss for 1911, and shows a tendency in the right direction.

Owing to the greater vigilance of insurance companies and police departments, a great many convictions have resulted for incendiary fires. The extent to which incendiary is carried on may be judged in some measure from the fact that an arson trust has been discovered in New York, in which a large number of men were engaged in the business of burning stores and houses, in order to get the insurance. They had a regular system of practicing fraud upon insurance companies and escaping punishment. They resorted to very ingenious methods in settling the fires so that the actual origin could not be traced but the police have been equally ingenious in finding out the devices adopted for this purpose. They have induced some of the culprits to turn state's evidence and one of them has testified that certain members of the trust manufactured gasoline sausages for the purpose of starting fires in meat markets, where there was an absence of material of a combustible character.

It is true that during the past year there was no very great calamity such as the burning down of an entire city or the devastation by forest fires. There was no fire like that of San Francisco or Chelsea to add abnormally to the total loss.

Losses for the year are therefore low, and the fact that the total amount is so much less than that of the previous year may have resulted in part from the increase of fire-proof construction of buildings. All over the country there is a movement for the prevention of fires and for the promotion of fire-proof construction. The steel and cement buildings are becoming popular on account of their offering greater resistance to fire and therefore greater security to the occupants. This movement should be encouraged everywhere.

The city government of Lowell and of every other city in the country should prevent the construction of flimsy buildings that are liable to become an easy prey to the flames, and should encourage fire-proof construction wherever possible as a means of safety to life and property. There has been during the past year a diminution in the loss by forest fires. Many states throughout the country have adopted strict laws to prevent fires in all wooded districts. Boys who have been prone to start brush fires have become more cautious knowing that they are now liable to fall into the hands of the police.

In addition to the other tendencies, there has been progress in the more effective methods of fighting fires, so that fire departments respond more promptly and prevent loss by extinguishing fire before it has time to spread. The change from horse-drawn vehicles to motor engines and auto fire patrols enables fire departments to reach the scene of the fire more quickly than would otherwise be possible. This counts for more than is generally supposed because it often happens that a difference of five, ten or fifteen minutes in getting a stream upon a fire is all the difference between an incipient blaze and a disastrous conflagration.

COME OVER, ALFONSO

King Alfonso of Spain is desirous of visiting the United States next summer, and it is intimated by his government that he may be advised to do so if such a trip would meet with the approval of our own government. Upon this score there need be no question. The young ruler of the Spaniards is in very good favor here, because he is looked upon as one of the most democratic of the European rulers. He has shown a very lively interest in the affairs of the world ever since he was old enough to travel, and he has made friends wherever he has gone by his sincerity and his enthusiasm.

It is no secret to be a king in these days of tottering thrones, and especially of such a tradition-bound country as Spain. Alfonso has been breaking traditions ever since he came into power as a very young man. When a disaster occurred at the military barracks in his capital he did not wait to be formally notified, as was customary, but rushed over there alone and took personal charge. When he became interested in automobile racing he would not content himself with the official drive, guarded by his police, but ran his own machine and went far into the country as other young men love to do. When his ministers politely intimated that it was time for him to select a bride, he slipped over to England, where he had already fallen in love with a princess, and proposed to her. The marriage has been a very happy one, in spite of the predictions made by the old ladies of both countries. One attempt was made to kill him in Paris, and another in his own country, and he showed great personal courage on both occasions.

If Alfonso comes over to the United States there will be a hearty reception awaiting him at the hands of the republic that stripped him of his colonial possessions. Our people would be glad to show him that they bear him no ill will. They know that he has done his best to make good in a difficult position. And if he comes, and his itinerary takes him to Boston, let our board of trade see to it that he is urged to take a side trip of inspection to the Spindle City, where distinguished visitors before him have found much to interest them.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE TACTICS

Romance is not dead, and will not be, so long as women—or a great many of them—demand the right to vote. For months they have invaded all our spheres of activity with a virility until recently undiscovered in the gentler sex. We read with pleasure, and a quickening of the pulse, that on the day before the inauguration of President Wilson, fully ten thousand women will parade through the streets of the capital, in a great allegorical pageant. Whether the cause will gain materially from such tactics we are unable to say, but it is equally problematic whether it will lose because of this picturesque exploitation.

How very different are the reports from our trans-Atlantic sisters; outrage after outrage has been committed there in the name of the cause; rights of person and property have been violated. Perhaps it is unjust to blame the movement for the actions of individuals, or even the concerted action of organized violence, in certain sections; but results have shown that such tactics have injured the cause. Here even those who oppose woman suffrage do so without the intense opposition shown in England by a public, made bitter and prejudiced by the mistaken zeal of frenzied women. The fact that the movement is progressing more rapidly in this country than in England should convince the British extremists that they are on the wrong track when they attack public officials or resort to violence in any form.

NEW ENGLAND GOVERNORS

The conference of five New England governors to consider railroad matters affecting their respective states, favored a joint commission to make a thorough investigation of the railroad conditions and report such recommendations as they might see fit to make. Possibly this commission will take a more general view of the railroad needs of New England than would a commission of any particular state. We believe that this general action may result in some good, inasmuch as heretofore each state has been hammering away at some particular railroad or some particular phase of railroad shortcomings. It will be a relief if they can unite upon a definite policy that will advance the interests of all the New England states.

There were, in all, eleven phases of the railroad question specified for investigation, the adjustment of any of which would mean a decided change in existing conditions.

The most optimistic among us must not expect much more from such conferences than has resulted in instances of a similar kind in the past. Conditions are different in the different states, and the laws governing those conditions still more so. The states will gain rather than lose other things being equal, by uniting their influence for their common good.

THE LINCOLN MONUMENT

The lower house of congress seems unable to agree as to the form which the proposed Lincoln memorial at Washington shall take. Two plans are being considered, one contemplating a national boulevard from Washington to Gettysburg, which has a sentimental aim and the other the erection of a $2,000,000 memorial in Washington on the banks of the Potomac, which should take the form of a Greek temple containing a statue of Lincoln. If any memorial be decided upon it seems a pity that Lincoln, a distinctively American type, should not be honored by a truly American memorial. In the Greek sense, there was nothing classical in the physical make-up of the great president, and we wonder if he could conform himself, even in effigy, to the severe lines of a Greek temple.

ALICE AND MAY

Did you read that talk on "Poison" that Mr. Tighe gave to the Lowell people the other day, Alice?
Yes, I read every bit of it—and I don't often read things like that. It was mighty interesting, though I can't remember a word of it now. I've cut it out of the paper and put it away in the bureau drawer, so if my brother ever takes rat poison by mistake, I'll know just what to do for him.

Why don't you read the article over and over, until you know it by heart, Alice?
I guess I'll try it when I get round to it. I wonder how the policeman will remember it though?

They'll do it all right. The Lowell policemen are pretty special.

The only part of that poison speech I can think of now, is that, to get an antidote for an acid poison, you can cut a piece of plaster out of a wall or ceiling, dissolve it in water, and give it to the sick person. We just had our house plastered and I hated to hear what my father would say if he saw me digging a hole in the wall, even if it was to mix a plaster drink for my dying brother. No, it would send for the doctor, but he wouldn't have his walls ripped out, and I don't blame him.

I wouldn't either, Alice. It will be awfully confusing for the policeman, though, to know what symptoms go with each kind of poison, and what must be done in each case. I don't think they forgot which was which, they could try everything they could think of, and one of them would be sure to be the right one.

That would be hard on the poor poisoned person, May. But, say, Mayor O'Donnell's ideas about improving the police force are good, don't you think so?

Yes, they are. It's up to the policeman now, to do their part. I was reading an article about policemen the other day. It was written by a woman, and she said that we never speak to an officer of the law, except when we want to make a complaint; we never invite them socially to our homes; and we make them associate with people whom we wouldn't have anything to do with.

Those things are mostly true, too. People don't realize what a thankless job it is to be a cop.

Especially in New York, where they sent the policeman to jail or to the electric chair for such slight misdeemeanors.

I don't think like that ever happens in Lowell, Alice.

No, but if we had a couple of Finnegans in Lowell, there's no telling what would happen. I don't think the rich men in Lowell don't like their money to the police when they die—they've got other uses for it.

I see that, Sup. Welch wants a raise. I hope he gets it.

Yes, I do, too. I heard my father talking about it last night, and he said the superintendent did such good work during the strike, that he deserves more pay. But, how about that article on poison, Alice?

Oh, yes, May—I was telling you about it. Well, the woman goes on to say that we ought to treat our policemen better—more like human beings. I'm sure I don't know just what she means.

Why, I think they're treated decently enough. Does she think that everyone going along the street ought to stop and have a friendly conversation with the cops on the street corners? Perhaps the cops—you never can tell just what these lady reformers want. I wish she could see the officers marching down Central street every morning. The Strong Arm Squad is what I call them—when, if a girl stopped one of them to have a friendly chat with him, I bet he'd arrest her for flirting with a representative of the law, or on some other serious charge like that.

The lady surely didn't mean that she meant that the people as a whole ought to be kinder to the policeman. That sounds nice, May, but how would they do it? Open Association hall every afternoon, and have the girls of Lowell serve tea and fudge, and think they have a good enough time as it is, and moreover, Mayor O'Donnell has promised to raise their pay 25 cents a day which is the best kind of treatment I know of.

WOMAN COULD NOT WALK

She Was So Ill—Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Pontwater, Mich.—"A year ago I was very weak and the doctor said I had a serious displacement. I had backache and bearing down pains so bad that I could not sit in a chair or walk across the floor and I was in severe pain all the time. I felt discouraged as I had taken everything I could think of and was no better. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I am strong and healthy."—Mrs. ALICE DARLING, R.P.D. No. 2, Box 77, Pontwater, Mich.

Read What Another Woman Says: Peoria, Ill.—"I had such backaches that I could hardly stand on my feet. I would feel like crying out lots of times, and had such a heavy feeling in my right side. I had such terrible dull headaches every day and they would make me feel so drowsy and sleepy all the time, yet I could not sleep at night."

"After I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a week I began to improve. My backache was less and that heavy feeling in my side went away. I continued to take the Compound and am cured."

"You may publish this if you wish."—Miss CLARA L. GAUWITZ, R.R. No. 4, Box 62, Peoria, Ill.

Seen and Heard

"Books Received." "Books Delivered." The illuminating signs out and receiving of books, to a tired being a help they are a positive hindrance, as we can learn from experience, further strengthened by a talk whose duties are unnecessarily complicated by the necessity of last-minute instructions to people, who, confused by the signs, go to the wrong window, whether receiving or returning books.

They are revising the old story of the correspondence between Victor Hugo and his publisher on the issue of "Les Misérables." Very busy but anxious to know how the book was selling, Hugo sent the publisher a card marked simply "The reply came back."

This recalls the Cleveland man—no longer young—who had been promised an early answer to his proposal of marriage, and finally, becoming impatient, wrote as follows: "When can I come up and get the answer to my?"

The clever young woman promptly replied: "Long."

Which, being deciphered, meant "comma long."

It is pleasing to relate that when the voter had "come along" the young woman put a full stop to his anxiety.

The recent anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns turned the talk among several of the Waverly orphans at dinner, Sunday, toward the immortal Scot. From our conversation it was easy to note that all of us had an intimate acquaintance with "Rattlin' Rags," better known poems and, though none happened to be of that particular branch of the Gaelic family, that we all looked upon him as our best-loved poet. And why should not this be so? "Twas Burns who said: "Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn," and the great meaning of these words have never been surpassed in song or story.

Burns is the poet of the people. The tenderness that rings in every syllable of his serious verses, and a responsive echo in the hearts of all men, irrespective of their nationality. Whether he sings of the freestone or the heather, of a comely lassie or a tiny field mouse he sings with an earnestness and beauty that never has been, and undoubtedly never will be surpassed.

The grandeur of nature he saw with a thousand eyes. And with his homely phrases he painted it in thoughts and words of such exquisite beauty that they will live in the hearts of men for all time. The upright and simple lives of the peasant folk about him, he loved only as a soul inspired by the loftiest ideals can love and in giving words to these traits of his people, as in "The Cotter's Saturday Night," he makes the ear beam with the nobility and the heart beat with the keenest sympathy. The largeness of his heart, too, is manifest in the thoughts that pervade those simple, touching poems "To a Mouse" and "To a Mountain Daisy."

On reading them one immediately realizes that the man who gave expression to them felt a love that reached to the lowliest things of life. And he who has even the slightest love for an old friend, an old home, it is certain cannot help but feel that the heart which poured forth the noble sentiments which have made "Auld Lang Syne" loved wherever English is spoken, was one as steadfast and as true as ever dwelt in mortal bosom.

How appropriately Burns has been called the "ploughman's poet," that was a ploughman. It is large day, says, quotes Stevenson, "literally glowing," his conversation rang with such vigor and confidence that even the intellectual who sought his society found it expedient to, as they say, "take a second seat."

The acquaintance of those persons, however, had no effect upon the poet's character. Counted though he was by the great, this ploughman never turned his back, even for a moment, on his old associates and friends. Always ready to sacrifice an acquaintance for a friend, although the acquaintance were a duke. Probably this statement is an unnecessary one, for it would be beyond the bounds of reason to imagine that the poet's character as that of Burns would sink toward ignominy merely because of an intimacy with the great. The ploughman poet loved his own, first, last and all the time.

"Affliction's sons are brothers in distress." "A brother to relieve—how exquisite the bliss!"

And when we but glance at Burns' matches descriptions of the quiet life of his native Scotland, and the streams of Ayrshire and recall the melancholia which overshadowed his life, we instinctively feel the same feeling which overpowered him when writing:

"Ye banks and braes o' bonny Doon, How can ye bloom so fresh and fair?"

"How can ye eunt, ye little birds, And I see weary fu' o' care?"

Of all types of men, a poet rises to the sublimest heights in a love of country. Should we marvel then that the ploughman poet whose heart could be touched by the sight of a wee field mouse should rise to majestic grandeur when inspired by the love of his native land? and give voice to those exalted sentiments:

"O Scotia, my dear, my native soil, For whom my warmest wish is Heaven! Should Heaven but put my power to proof, My song should make you free."

"Be blest with health, and peace, and sweet contentment. And Heaven's benison upon your simple life, prevent From luxury's contagion, weak and vile. Then, howe'er pow'ers and coronets be rent, A virtuous populace may rise to the white, And stand a wall of fire around their much-loved isle."

WILSON STUDIES IMMIGRATION PROBLEM ON VISIT TO ELLIS ISLAND WITH HIS FAMILY

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—One of the questions that President Wilson will have to pass on will be that of immigration, and he has already begun to acquire definite information on the subject. He made what might be called a semi-official visit to Ellis Island, accompanied by his wife and two of his daughters, and under the guidance of Commissioner of Immigration Williams he saw how strangers are admitted to the United States or are told that they must be deported. Governor Wilson did not make a thorough inspection of the institution. He was shot through the works too fast for that. Commissioner Williams kept him going like a bullet from a gun in order that he might see as much as possible in a few hours. If

Mr. Wilson was impressed or otherwise moved by what he saw he did not show it. For the most part his replies to Mr. Williams' explanations were monosyllabic, and he had few questions to ask. He was interested, but not eager. In fact, Mr. Williams did not give him much chance. But he was closely and severely attentive to everything.

SAIL FROM BOSTON BUT FIRST SEE NEW ENGLAND

The New England Railroad Lines have now put in circulation nearly half a million illustrated pamphlets, in the form of a railroad folder, entitled as above, and still invite the public to freely accept of them and enclose them in the envelopes in which they send letters or accounts to their correspondents, especially in the West.

This folder is in two sizes and can be enclosed in either a large or small envelope without increasing the postage. They may be had of any of the 2100 station agents of the New England Lines or in large lots from Room 492, South Station, Boston.

It shows the relative size of the earliest and latest in ocean liners, maps the ocean routes of the six passenger lines from Boston; gives sailing dates of the steamers from Boston for 1913; the location and rates of the more than thirty first-class hotels in Boston and details the attractions in and around Boston for a stop-over by the ocean tourist.

The slogan, "Sail From Boston, But First See New England" has been taken up in Chicago and the West most responsively.

Let us continue to forward the slogan from New England and assist in arousing the whole country to the advantages of New England, not only as a sailing port, but as the summer resort and vacation ground for the whole United States. The New England Railroad Lines can be relied upon for their part in the co-operative upbuilding of New England.

SEAT AT INAUGURATION

Kansas Man Wants to Attend Exercises

VOWED NEVER TO HAVE HAIR CUT UNTIL DEMOCRAT WON

Wants to be Located in Section Easily Accessible to Barber Shop—Committee to Reserve Seat

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Although the first nails in the inauguration grandstands have not yet been driven, Representative George Neilly of Kansas called on the inaugural committee today to reserve him one seat that must be within view of the spot where President-elect Wilson will be sworn in on March 4, must be easy to escape from immediately after that ceremony and must be easily accessible to a barber shop. Mr. Neilly wants the seat for a constituent, E. F. Boxwell of Kansas, who in 1896 took a vow never to have his hair doctored by a barber's shears until a democrat took the oath of office as president of the United States.

"This man's hair, I am informed, is now 44 inches or feet or something long," said Mr. Neilly, "and you can't blame him for wanting to lose some of it as soon after the inauguration as is reasonably possible."

Mr. Neilly then produced the pathetic plea of the man from Kansas.

The letter read: "Secure for me a seat on the inaugural stand; I want to see Governor Wilson lift his right hand and take the oath of office. Then me for a barber shop."

It was announced formally today that the section of the reviewing stand from which President Wilson and Vice President Marshall and their immediate families will observe the parade, will be sheathed in glass. The remainder of the stand, however, will be open to the chill breezes.

Drinkley Girls

A largely attended meeting of the Drinkley Girls was held at the home of their president last Friday evening. Considerable business was transacted and the election of new officers took place. The officers chosen are as follows: President, Miss Loretta Campbell; vice president, Miss Mae Gillick; treasurer, Miss Annie Boyle; secretary, Miss Catherine Gillick. After the business session a social hour was enjoyed. Violin selections were given by Miss Mae Higgins, and a very interesting reading was delivered by Miss Mae Lennan. Vocal selections were rendered by Miss May Moran, and also by a quartet composed of the Misses Mary Collins, Rose Campbell, Alice Healy and Agnes Gillick. The Misses Lora Gillick and Della Boyle presided at the piano. Refreshments were served and the meeting was brought to a close at an early hour, all having heartily enjoyed the session.

Wanted Confederate Notes Redeemed
WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Publication recently of a pathetic appeal of a New York mother for the redemption by the government of two ten dollar Confederate notes to obtain bread for her four children excited the charity of a woman in New York, who in a letter received by President Taft offered to investigate the case and relieve the family's distress. Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse and regulate your stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and that misery-making gas; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from any drug store means a clear head, sweet stomach and clean, healthy liver and bowel action for months. Children love to take Cascarets because they taste good—never gripe or sicken.

BALTIC POOL DESCRIBED YOUNG BANDIT KILLED

To the House Shipping Was Shot by Telephone Trust Committee Operator

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The Baltic pool was described to the house shipping trust committee today by J. A. McCarthy of Philadelphia, freight agent for the Scandinavian American line, who testified that the Hamburg American, North German Lloyd, Wilson and Scandinavian American lines pooled their business and maintained identical rates on the trade between the United States and Baltic ports. He said there was no agreement as to a division of ports or routes, as far as he knew; that each line was free to operate between any of the American ports, or out ports and any of the 100 or more ports on the Baltic.

PUT BAN ON HATPINS

Legislative Committee Recommends Law

BOSTON, Jan. 28.—The wearing of women's hats that are a menace to the public must be prohibited in this state. This is the conclusion of the legislative committee after hearing both men and women on the subject today. It recommended the adoption of a law making it a misdemeanor for a woman to permit the pointed end of a pin to protrude more than a half an inch from the side of her hat, and any of the covered with some device rendering it harmless.

The most serious argument made against the legislation was that women sometimes are compelled to draw their hats and use them as weapons with which to protect themselves from looters and muggers.

GLOOM OVER SMART SET

In Washington by Order to Reduce Force

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—With the approach of March 4, gloom has settled over the army and navy "smart set" for reports reaching Washington to the effect that one of President-elect Wilson's first house cleaning orders will involve a sweeping reduction in the number of military and naval attaches now on duty at the White House. All are popularly and much in demand for dances and balls.

There are at present 121 officers detailed to the president for escort duty for distinguished guests and to undertake the hundred and one social and diplomatic odd jobs that the chief executive is compelled to have done. The staff of officers has steadily increased since President Roosevelt's first term and visitors returning from Trenton have brought back the report that a shake-up is indicated by Governor Wilson who would have the officers return to their regiments or to their ships.

MATRIMONIAL

The news of the marriage of Miss Louise Reed and Mr. John C. McLaughlin, in Putnam, Conn., yesterday afternoon, came as a surprise to the many friends of the young couple in this city. Mrs. McLaughlin is a very popular Lowell girl, and graduated a few years ago from the local high school. Her husband is the well known manager of the Waterville hotel on Market street. Mrs. McLaughlin's relatives thought that she was visiting in Boston, and the telegram announcing her marriage, which reached her home at 223 Liberty street, last night, was quite unexpected.

DON'T SCOLD AN IRRITABLE CHILD.

If Tongue is Coated, Stomach Sour, Breath Foul, Give "Syrup of Figs" to Clean the Bowels.

Your child isn't naturally cross, irritable and peevish. Mother! Examine the tongue; if coated, it means the little one's stomach is disordered, liver inactive and its thirty feet of bowels clogged with foul, decaying waste.

Every mother realizes after giving "Syrup of Figs" that this is the ideal laxative and physic for children. Nothing else regulates the little one's tender stomach, cleans and purges so effectively, besides they dearly love its pleasant taste.

For constant bowels, sluggish liver, biliousness, or sour, disordered stomach, feverishness, diarrhoea, sore throat, bad breath or to break a cold, give one-half to a teaspoonful of "Syrup of Figs" and in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and indigestible food and constipated matter will gently move on and out of the system without griping or nausea, and you will surely have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not dosing your children, you are purging entirely of useless food, and no amount of laxative can be harmful.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasteless, gentle and reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

FOR THEFT OF GOWNS

Valued at $1000 Charge Against Weir

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Jan. 28.—Lieut. Weir of the 18 infantry is under arrest at Fort Mackenzie charged with the theft of gowns valued at $1000 from the home of Capt. J. S. Cecil, a brother officer. Although Weir's arrest occurred two days ago the fact was not made known until he was released last night on $500 bail. Mrs. Weir is visiting in Houston, Texas. It is charged that the theft occurred while Lieut. Weir and his wife were occupying the Cecil apartments during the latter's temporary absence. Capt. Cecil is in Washington, where he was summoned to be presented with a medal of honor for gallantry in the Philippine war. Weir was captain of the 1910 football team at West Point.

It is estimated that there are 1200 operatives now out of employment. Recognition of their union is one of the main points in this dispute.

REDUCE MONAR TARIFF

Proposition Considered by Committee

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—With only a few witnesses left the house committee investigating the tariff schedules went on to clean up hearings on Schedule K, admittedly the storm center of the tariff question of the coming extra session of congress. In the hearings so far it has been indicated that the democrats intend to revise the wool tariff along the lines of the wool bill of 1911 and 1912, voted by President Taft.

Nobis, used in the manufacture of clothing for felt, plushes and other purposes, bids fair to be reduced from 40 to 20 per cent ad valorem. Johnston Robertson of Del Rio, Texas, an Angora goat producer, pleaded today for a specific rate of 40 cents a pound, equivalent to the present 40 per cent duty.

Chairman Underwood pointed out that it was the raw material for great industries and although now a luxury it was every day becoming more of a necessity.

MULFORD AND HARRY ENDICOTT DEMONSTRATORS BUSY

Showing Cars to Prospective Buyers

Are to Participate in the International Sweepstakes Race

Anxious to add more laurels to his already brilliant record, Harry Endicott, one of the most daring and skillful speed pilots in the United States, will drive a Napier car in the third annual 500-mile International Sweepstakes race which will be staged at the Indianapolis motor speedway, Memorial day. Formal entry of the car has been made by the manufacturers, and this is the first time in the history of the Napier that one of its cars has been entered in a race. The car is now in course of construction, and while Driver Endicott is superintending the work, it will be practically a stock car. It will have a piston displacement of 319 cubic inches, and great confidence is placed in the win which will be won by the car. It will be equipped with a factor which enters largely into the chances of winning a race.

Endicott was entered in 12 races last year. As relief driver for his brother, "Burr" Endicott, he drove 300 miles of the 500-mile race held at the Indianapolis motor speedway in 1912, and was given credit for fifth place. Later, at Galveston, Texas, he won first place in six races, and in the 1913 Grand Prize in 1900, driving a Lozier, and in 1911, when the first 500-mile race was held at the Indianapolis motor speedway, he won second place, crossing the tape a second and a half after the winning Marmon.

course by six miles an hour. At Milwaukee, Endicott was the winner of the Wisconsin Challenge Trophy, driving a Marmon car.

It is highly probable that two or more of these cars will also be entered in the 500-mile race at Indianapolis. Arrangements toward this end are being made by J. S. Dusenberry, of Des Moines, Iowa, designer of the engine which is being used in the Marmon racing car. These cars show by past performances that they will be able to give a good account of themselves in the big speed contest, and at the Milwaukee races last fall it was a Marmon car that won the Babst Trophy. Mort Roberts was at the steering wheel in this race, and when his teammate, Endicott, walked away with the Challenge Cup, the makers of the Marmon car felt that they had made a good start in the racing game.

Since then, Harry Mulford, driving a Marmon car, won the Elgin Day Derby at Brighton Beach, doing the hundred miles in a fraction over 101 minutes. He ran against a field of prominent cars, all of which were larger than the Marmon. Mulford, however, will drive one of the Marmons entered in the 500-mile race, and a special car is being built for this purpose. It will have a piston displacement of 320 cubic inches, with cylinders 4-1/2x6-1/2. It will be momentarily in the hands of the Grand Prize in 1900, driving a Lozier, and in 1911, when the first 500-mile race was held at the Indianapolis motor speedway, he won second place, crossing the tape a second and a half after the winning Marmon.

motor car than with those who know or pretend to know a whole lot. It is the motor-wise who do not get the best service out of their cars. This applies to all makes.

Therefore, the diagnosis of most troubles is "inability," and the prescription is "forget it; use a little Christian Science."

Large Shipments of Buicks

The Buick Motor company has again distinguished itself as among the largest shippers of first class freight in the world by means of a special trainload of 75 cars containing 375 Buick automobiles valued at approximately $300,000. These were sent to the agency at San Francisco recently.

Every year at this time mammoth trainloads of Buick automobiles leave the Flint, Mich., factories for various points, and the Howard Automobile company of San Francisco has always been one of those who receive the largest shipments. So impressed by the magnitude of such a shipment was the San Francisco board of trade, that a letter was written by its president and secretary to the Buick agent, congratulating him upon such an achievement.

WILL NOT BE CANDIDATE TO CALL GENERAL STRIKE

J. J. McManmon Retires Of the Garment Workers From Official Life In Chicago

HAS SERVED TOWN OF DRAUGHT FOR FOURTEEN YEARS

Wants Treasurer For Twelve Years—Wants to Let Some One Else Run the Town's Finances

The Draught democratic town committee held a meeting at J. J. McManmon's store in Collinsville for the purpose of making out the list of candidates for the coming town election. A surprise was sprung at the meeting when it was announced that Treasurer James J. McManmon, who held the office for the past twelve years after serving two years as selectman, would not be a candidate for the said position this year. The latter was urged to place his name on the list, but he absolutely refused to do so because he felt he had long enough and he wished to let some other good democrat tackle the job.

Finally when it was seen that Mr. McManmon would not be a candidate the name of Nicholas Gallagher was endorsed. The others who have filed their intentions to date are as follows: Town clerk, John W. Brennan; treasurer, Nicholas Gallagher; selectmen, Martin J. Burke, John Madden, assessor, Michael Whelan; town wardens, Thomas Carlek, Albert Marshall; school committee, Bernard Maguire, John H. Gillick; library trustee, Patrick Cassidy.

Mr. McManmon, when seen by the writer this morning relative to the committee meeting and his candidacy said "I do not feel as though I want to play selfish on the matter. I have held the position of town treasurer for the past twelve years, and now I want others to handle the town's finances. I do not want my fellow townsmen or others to believe that I am going back on my party. On the contrary, I will work as hard for the welfare of the party and the town as I would if I were in office. I wish to let others be candidates and if it is the wish of the voters to elect them they may do so. I was interviewed a couple of weeks ago by several democrats and republicans relative to my candidacy, as they had learned I would not run for office. They did all in their power to have me name on the list again, but I absolutely refused and suggested that some other democrat be named."

Again this morning another delegation called on me, but I am firm in my decision and will not run for any office this year. However, I take this opportunity to thank my many friends from both political parties for the kind and generous support they have given me in the past, and I may also say that my elections in the past have always been unsolicited. Although I will not be one of the town officials, I will always do my utmost for the welfare of Draught while of course, I feel grateful to the democratic party for the honors conferred on me.
